WORKERS 'CHEESED OFF' . . . . . . BY LACK OF PROGRESS

'We Can't Hold Men on the Job'

More than 5,000 loggers and mill workers on Vancouver Island were on strike by noon today.

All operations within the district covered by Duncan Local 1-80 were strikebound. This involved 3,500 persons.

At Port Alberni, 950 workers at MacMillan Bloedel's Somas mill went out this morning, along with 275 loggers at Sproat Lake.

"In my opinion the entire coastal area will be closed down tight by Tuesday midnight," said Duncan president Weldon Jubenville.

"Anyone who is out on strike now has the full support of local union officers.

"It is quite obvious the membership is bitterly disappointed it was not instructed to walk out at midnight June 14" (when the contract expired).

The strike started at MacMillan Bloedel in Chemainus when the night shift didn't go to work. As the strike spread this morning, crummies brought loggers back from the woods.

In Victoria, Local 1-118 president Murray Drew and strikers at Victoria Plywood accused the company of employing non-union truck drivers and having foremen do employees' work.

Said Mr. Drew: "The plant committee went to the company, had a meeting and were as much as told to go to hell.

"The plant committee gave them until 12 o'clock (midnight) to say what they were going to do. No answer was forthcoming."

Strikers outside the Hallowell Road mill gave the same reasons, but added they are "cheesed off" that negotiations made no progress.

$50 Million Package Sought!

This is what 50 cents an hour means for the person working a full 40-hour week.

Present hourly wages run from $2.36 for laborers to $4.12½ for some head sawyers. Fallers and buckers are paid on a piecework basis.

The average hourly wage, according to the industry, is $2.82.

In weekly sums, this means $94.40 for laborers, $165 for some head sawyers — and an average of $112.80.

The wage demand alone, if met in full, would cost the industry an extra $25 million.

An industry spokesman has said the fringe benefits demanded would cost another 50 cents an hour, for a total of $50 million.

Woods' Walk-Off Spreads

Members Defy Order To Remain at Jobs

By ROGER STONEBANKS

British Columbia's biggest industry began grinding to a halt today.

In growing numbers, rank and file members of the International Woodworkers of America walked off their jobs and posted pickets around mills and at logging camps.

By noon, half the 26,000 union members along the coast and on Vancouver Island were on strike.

The legal strike is in defiance of union leaders and the union's 10-man negotiating committee.

They wanted workers to remain on the job until Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, the industrial inquiry commissioner in the contract dispute, brings down his report next week and members vote on it in a secret ballot.

But individual members decided to go ahead on their own to back pre-strike demands and union leaders were unable to persuade them to stay at work.

CITY MILL CLOSED

Among those on strike at noon were more than 5,000 on Vancouver Island. Only mill struck locally was Victoria Plywood, where 200 men called it quits Thursday night.

"It's just mushrooming," said Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local, who reported half his members on strike.

A meeting of the union's negotiating committee was called for this afternoon "to take a look at this situation," said regional president Jack Moore.

Mr. Thompson blamed the companies for the walkouts, although he agreed with Mr. Moore the men should wait.

'LITTLE DONE'

During three months of negotiations the employers had "done little more than sit on their well-proportioned posteriors, and have refused to resolve any of the major issues in dispute."

The individual members were "sick and tired of employer procrastination and delay."

There was no comment from Mr. Justice Nemetz.

Earlier, however, he said he expects to start writing his report early next week. His recommendations are not binding on either side.

Last Tuesday, he was assured by union leaders there would be no strike until his report was completed and submitted to members for their decision.

FRASER WALKOUT

But on Wednesday, 160 loggers in the Fraser Valley went on strike and by Thursday night about 3,500 men were out.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said he has persuaded Mr. Justice Nemetz to continue seeking a solution to the woodworkers contract dispute despite the walkout.

"As labor minister, I'm pinning my hopes on him to effect a settlement or else bring in a report with his recommendations," Mr. Peterson told The Times in an interview from Vancouver.

He revealed that the judge had spoken with him this morning about the surprise walkout and "he's most disturbed by it which is in contravention of the agreement reached between the union negotiators and myself."

Mr. Peterson said at Judge Nemetz's request, he was prepared to extend the deadline for the commission report "as long as necessary."

Meanwhile, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Willis-

INJURED RUSSIAN SEAMAN is carried ashore from Soviet fishing vessel Indigirka. Fellow crewmen, among them several women, lined ship's rails for their first close-up glimpse of a Canadian port. Several English-speaking crewmen asked to see Canadian coins. In exchange they offered Russian money and cigarettes. One woman tried to board the ambulance with the injured man but was called back by immigration officials who boarded the ship to speak to the captain.

Injured Russ Seaman Lands For Treatment

By TERRY IZZARD

An ambulance team was standing by at Ogden Point when the refrigeration ship tied up at 9 a.m.

At press time he was in fair condition.

Dr. William Edwards, who was put aboard the vessel by a B.C. Pilotage boat which went to meet it, said Frolov appeared to have a brain abcess.

FELL ON SHIP

Officials, who spoke to the ship's captain, said the seaman suffered a fall on April 25.

No reason was given for the delay in getting him to shore.

In the two hours before the ship sailed to join the fishing fleet off the coast of Washington, crewmen chatted in halting English with newsmen on shore.

They exchanged coins and cigarettes as their comrade was loaded into the ambulance.

CALLED BACK

But an immigration official called her back to the ship.

It is believed Frolov will be flown back to the Soviet Union or picked up by one of the fleet when he recovers.

Five other Russians from the vast Soviet fleet have been landed at North American ports for treatement in recent months — two of them in the past two days.

Financial Paper Blasts Big B.C. Power Project

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

A major Wall Street financial paper which is bitterly opposed to public power has lambasted B.C. Hydro's Peace River project, Premier Bennett and New York financiers willing to sell a $50 million bond issue for B.C. Hydro.

Barron's, the publication, made its attack in this week's edition warning its readers against buying the bonds before they go on the market.

It said the agreement by five top New York financial houses to sell the bonds "points up one of the street's most unfortunate failings . . . its willingness to do business with men one can't trust."

Premier Bennett's office today said he was too busy with appointments to see reporters seeking his reaction to the attack.

●

The paper's editorial went on to recall its angry opposition to Premier Bennett's "illegal" takeover of the B.C. Electric Company.

Then it swung into direct criticism of B.C. Hydro.

"From a bad beginning, the authority is moving steadily towards a dubious end. In view of the restraints on investment, domestic and foreign, now being urged on private enterprise in the U.S. and Canada alike, this is a curious moment to pursue a huge and costly project.

"Even in the best of times, as the prospectus neglects to point out, the Peace River development which the new bonds will help to finance would strike most observers as highly speculative.

"Power, as Lord Acton once said, corrupts. He should have lived to see public power.

"It's quite a sight. On the U.S. side of the border stand such monuments to lack of principle as the obsolete nuclear power station at Hanford, Wash., as well as the illegally financed generating plant of the Colorado-Ute Electric Association.

"Now a project is rising north of the border, which—for size, cost and potential waste of resources—will dwarf anything on the continent."

The editorial said B.C. Hydro will have to spend $1.36 billion on the Peace and Columbia River projects in the next five years and the proposed bond issue "is only the first round" of borrowing.

It criticized the bond issue prospectus because it did not mention the "confiscation" of B.C. Electric.

"As to the future, the prospectus sheds equally dim light. For example, it nowhere breaks down total scheduled investment be-

SIGNALS CROSSED IN N.Y. HARBOR

Ship Crash Death Toll 20

NEW YORK (AP)—Intense heat and continuing danger of new fires thwarted efforts today to search for more victims in the twisted metal left by the flaming collision of two ships, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

More than 18 hours after the collision in the Kill van Kull Channel in lower New York Harbor firemen still were pouring foam onto the smoking, smoldering hulk of the British tanker Alva Cape, trying to cool her down and ensure that her remaining volatile naphtha cargo does not catch fire again.

The coast guard placed the toll of known dead at 20 among 101 crew members on the tankers and two escorting tugs which also caught fire after the collision Thursday. Twelve were listed as missing with 69 survivors, 40 in hospital.

The British tanker was carrying the naphtha cargo. The other vessel, the American tanker Texaco Massachusetts, had no cargo.

BLAMES SIGNALS MIXUP

A harbor pilot, Donald Baker, 45, of Massapequa Park, N.Y., who was aboard the Alva Cape, said the disaster apparently was caused by a mixup in signals.

Baker said the Texaco Massachusetts, which was pulling out of a tank farm, signalled the Alva Cape, which was coming into the channel, that the two ships would cross paths.

Baker said he acknowledged the signal and proceeded, possibly believing that the Texaco Massachusetts intended to hold back until his ship had passed.

Baker said when he saw that a collision was probable, he ordered full speed astern and, "we gave him (the American ship) a whistle, but by the time they answered, we were right on top of them."

Witnesses said one of the tugs exploded, igniting naphtha leaking from the 546-foot British tanker Alva Cape after its collision with the Texaco Massachusetts, an American tanker heading for the Gulf of Mexico after discharging its cargo in New York.

Alfonso Colon, 56, chief pumpman of the Texaco Massachusetts, told of one unidentified man who "took off his own life belt and gave it to somebody else—then he kept swimming from one man to another and helped them to the buoy."

Colon said his ship struck the Alva Cape and "cut through it like a knife."

"Then naphtha started to pour out of the Cape," Colon said. "Nothing serious would have happened but one of our tugs was straining so hard to avoid the accident that it blew up."

The coast guard said the tug, the Esso Vermont, apparently exploded when the naphtha—a petroleum distillate — washed over its engines. Eight of the Esso Vermont's nine-man crew were reported missing. One was rescued.

The cause of the collision remained a subject for coast guard investigation, which began immediately.

Two-Year Pact Ends Seaway Strike Threat

OTTAWA (CP)—A seaway strike that would have cut off shipping for half a continent was called off Thursday night when union and management negotiators settled for a wage increase of 20 per cent now and another 10 per cent in 1967.

Total cost will approach $4,000,000.

The agreement, approved at an emergency session of the federal cabinet, will raise the average wage package of the St. Lawrence Seaway's 1,200 operating employees to $3.21 an hour from $2.36 as of next Jan. 1.

Settlement terms were worked out late in the fourth day of mediation talks directed by Senator Norman MacKenzie, appointed to the task only last Thursday by his old university schoolmate, Labor Minister Nicholson.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the settlement in the Commons a half-hour before the Canadian section of the seaway was scheduled to begin shut-down procedures. A strike had been set for noon today.

Sen. MacKenzie later reported that the 20-per-cent wage boost will apply retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year, when the old contract expired.

EXPECTS APPROVAL

W. J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), told the press conference he is confident his union members would accept the package.

Dr. Pierre Camu, president of the deficit-ridden St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, declined comment on all aspects of the settlement, including cost figures.

However, a reliable informant said later the wage package would cost an additional $1,360,000 this year and $2,500,000 extra in 1967. Last year's total wage bill on the seaway was about $5,000,000.

Mr. Smith told reporters the total value of the wage and benefits clauses in the new contract would be a minimum of 75 cents an hour and an average of 85 cents an hour for each worker.

Mr. Nicholson, who took over the federal labor portfolio in January, stressed that the seaway settlement should not be looked upon as a pattern.

"This was a special situation," he told a reporter, obviously with an eye to the crucial negotiations coming up later this summer in the railway industry.

MOVED MEETINGS

MacKenxie had ironed out all of the fringe issues in the seaway dispute earlier in the week during talks with both sides that began Monday in Cornwall and switched here Wednesday morning in order to be close to the source of power — the seaway's political headquarters.

Both sides met with Senator MacKenzie Thursday morning. But in the afternoon he kept the two parties in separate rooms and carried on a back-and-forth negotiating procedure.

The union had originally demanded a 35-per cent increase in one year, later amending this to two years.

DOCKERS REJECT FINES

VANCOUVER—There were unconfirmed reports here this afternoon that B.C. longshoremen were taking an unofficial strike vote following the conviction of 10 of their members on contempt of court charges.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ten union officials took three-month sentences today in lieu of fines after being convicted of contempt of court.

The men, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CLC) were convicted by Mr. Justice David Verchere and sentenced to three months or fines totalling $4,100.

They were convicted of disobeying a court order designed to stop the union from giving instructions to its members not to work on the Victoria Day holiday.

B.C. Supreme Court order instructed the officials to countermand any instructions they had given for a work stoppage on Victoria Day, to post notices to that effect on bulletin boards and to inform the Maritime Employers' Association that the order had been complied with.

The association, which had sought the order, informed Mr. Justice Verchere earlier this week that it had received no word from the union.

Mr. Justice Verehere fined Roy C. Smith, B.C. area president of the union, $500. The other nine were fined $400.

All 10 had surrendered themselves to the sheriff Wednesday after an order for their arrest had been made the day before because they had not appeared in court to face the charges.

They were released on their own recognizance until today.

Among the 10 sentenced was G. W. (Stan) Ball, business agent for the Victoria local.

BRITISH SEAMEN VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters)—The representatives of Britain's striking merchant seamen voted unanimously tonight to continue the strike that started 33 days ago. The decision was announced after a meeting of the seamen's union executive committee here.

But the resolution added that the seamen are willing to resume negotiations with the shipowners.

DAY-BY-DAY, IT WENT THIS WAY

Labor Dispute Took Four Months to Boil

Four months of events preceded today's spreading strike by rank-and-file loggers and mill workers on the B.C. coast.

Here is a summary of the chronology:

Feb. 28—International Woodworkers of America announces 16-point bargaining program including an extra 50 cents an hour for all employees;

March 1 — Industry spokesman John Billings calls IWA proposals exhorbitant;

March 14 — Industry announces its proposals, including seven-day production week and arbitration and damage payments in wildcat strikes;

May 5 —Conciliation officer Jack Sherlock recommends no conciliation board be appointed; IWA president Jack Moore moves for a strike vote; Industry says it won't ask that the vote be government-supervised;

May 25 — Government appoints Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz as industrial inquiry commissioner to try and effect a settlement; Union announces strike vote carried by 94 per cent;

May 31 — Direct negotiations resume;

June 7 — Mr. Justice Nemetz meets industry negotiators;

June 13 — Talks end; Union negotiating committee recommends no strike action until Mr. Justice Nemetz' report is received and submitted to membership secret vote;

June 16 — Rank-and-file walkouts spread through lower mainland and Vancouver Island affecting about 4,500 of the 26,000 members.

BOTH SIDES HAD SHOPPING LIST

UNION

- Extra 50 cents an hour for everyone;
- Portal to portal pay for loggers, with an 8½-hour day from marshalling point back to marshalling point;
- Double pay for overtime;
- No contracting out of work except under conditions of the master agreement;
- Extra shift differentials (15 to 20 cents more) and longer vacations with pay—three weeks after one year; four weeks after five years; five weeks after 10 years;
- The right to negotiate crew adjustments to new production methods or machines.

INDUSTRY

- Seven-day production week instead of the present five days to keep machinery running "at its optimum rate";
- Arbitration machinery to fix blame for illegal work stoppages and assessment of compensation for the injured party;
- Conference on falling and bucking fo "seek a viable solution . . . (to) serious distortions in the wage scale";
- Extension of plywood job evaluation to other sections of the industry;
- Payment of employees entitled to travel time at the minimum labor rate instead of the employee's job rate;
- Increased board and lodging rates in logging camps.

. . . CAN'T HOLD MEN

fused to comment, but did admit there was a meeting between the men and management Thursday.

"These things are not settled through the public press," he said.

Not affected at noon by the spreading strike were 1,000 workers at B.C. Forest Products two sawmills and plywood plant off Gorge Road. Another 400 persons work at other operations in Victoria, Sooke and Jordan River.

'This is an explosive situation," said Mr. Drew. "The membership are disturbed because of the attitude of the industry in that very little progress has been made in three months of negotiations.

"In reporting to the membership in the last three months it has been the same thing—no progress. The members are absolutely fed up."

Mr. Jubenville said a management offer of 12 cents an hour this year and 10 cents next year "would feel lonesome among the material in a garbage can.

"The employers are fully responsible for these spontaneous walkoffs through their mouthpiece John Billings (president of Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for companies).

In Port Alberni, Local 1-85 business agent John Squire commented:

"Everything happened so suddenly. It was spontaneous action. We asked the men to stay on the job.

"But the men are complaining we have been too long in negotiations. The men have taken things into their own hands."

ton said the forest industry was worth $985 million to the economy last year.

"It's the backbone of our whole economic existence of our life in B.C." he said.

"A strike cannot but help to affect our economy at a great many levels."

The rank-and-file action is the fourth strike in the coast lumber industry since the end of the Second World War.

In 1946, 37,000 woodworkers struck for five weeks to improve the 50-hour work week and a basic rate of 82 cents. They got a 15-cent raise, a 44-hour week in manufacturing and 48 hours in summer and 40 hours in winter for loggers.

In 1952, 33,500 union members struck for six weeks, gaining an extra 5½ cents and three paid statutory holidays.

The last industry strike was in 1959 when 27,000 men and women walked out for 10 weeks in a dispute that caused 1.2 million lost working days — exceeded by only one other strike in Canada since 1950.

They sought an extra 34 cents on top of the basic $1.72 an hour. After mediation by John Deutsch, now chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, they go 20 cents over two years plus an extra 10 cents for tradesmen.

Since then the basic rate has risen to the present $2.36.

Logger's Death Ruled Accident

NANAIMO—John McKendrick, 18-year-old logger, died an accidental death and no blame is attached to anyone, a coroner's jury ruled here Wednesday night.

Mr. McKendrick was injured at the Nanaimo River camp of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. on May 6 and died from his injuries in Nanaimo regional hospital two weeks later.

Dr. H. A. Philcox, Nanaimo, said he died of major damage to the spinal cord.

Hilda

Some gardeners find the seedlings difficult to handle, for they quickly become leggy and soft when crowded, and then succumb from lack of free air circulation.

The easy way out of this difficulty is to sow the seed thinly enough that only one seedling comes up in an inch of space. This is only approximate, but the seedlings will at least not be crowded for their first two weeks of life.

The remaining lettuce will then be two inches apart, sufficient space to allow development of the little plants to a size usable for sandwiches.

Later transplanting of every other lettuce in the row for use in succession will leave the originals four inches apart and this will allow the remainder to come along nicely.

Lettuce of the Butterhead type with varietal names such as Velvet and Buttercrunch will dow ell at this spacing, while the large varieties will need the eight-inch spacing.

The pleasant thing about growing one's own lettuce is that tasty salad material is available at all the different stages and there is no waste of seedlings if seed is sown thinly.

Transplanting a few each week, produces a succession crop over many weeks from the one sowing.

A similar small sowing should however be made bout the middle of July, this time of the Early Evergreen or Great Lakes 6238, both capable of withstanding the colder conditions of fall, and with us here, quite likely to continue in good condition until Christmas.

MPs Dispute Drug Claims

Three doctor-MPs made critical comments about the basis for the industry's claim that drug prices are fair and reasonable and about the industry's picture of itself.

Dr. Gaston Isabelle (L—Gatineau) figured the price inquiry is a waste of time and said the whole industry ought to be investigated, especially "the racketeers.

He said he thinks about half the companies are in that category. They should get out of business because they are giving the legitimate business a bad name.

Dr. Isabelles comment was made at the end of an 80-minute session during which a battery of officers and experts of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association of Canada was questioned by committee members.

MADE DETAILED CASE

In an inch-thick brief the association produced an array of statistics and arguments to support its opposition to loss or modification of patent protection and its support for abolition of the 11-per-cent federal sales tax and other measures.

The association, representing 57 companies which make 85 per cent of pharmaceuticals sold in Canada, proposed establishment of an independent source of information on drug products and prices and a tribunal to referee applications by manufacturers for compulsory licences to produce patented drugs.

A basic part of the associations argument that prices are fair and reasonable was the contention that a Canadian works fewer hours than people in most other countries to pay for drugs.

The brief produced a statistical formula which showed Canada second only to the United States on an index of retail prices covering Sweden, Britain, West Germany, France, Holland and Italy.

Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) took issue with the associations support of a price system based on cost to the druggist plus fee for service as a means to lower drug costs.

LSD MAY AID ALCOHOLICS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dr. Abram Hoffer, a Canadian psychiatrist, says the controversial fantasy-producing drug LSD may aid in the successful cure of alcoholics.

"Properly used LSD therapy can convert a large number of alcoholics into sober members of society," said Dr. Hoffer, director of psychiatric research for the Saskatchewan department of public health.

Bankruptcy Court Next Step in Crackdown

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave a speedy detailed approval Thursday to legislation to tighten up the bankruptcy law with the knowledge it's a forerunner to more sweeping changes.

Justice Minister Cardin, who piloted the legislation through the House, said the government is studying the possibility of a national court with exclusive jurisdiction over bankruptcies.

He suggested the federal Exchequer Court may be transformed to handle the job. He was "very strongly" in favor of consideration of such a move.

The Exchequer Court's prime function now is to handle civil cases involving income tax, patents and copyrights.

The consideration of a national court is a companion to a comprehensive study under way for some time of the whole Bankruptcy Act, last revised in 1949. The government has assigned three lawyers as a committee to draft a wholesale revision.

Mr. Cardin said their job should be completed before the end of the year.

Despite occasional sallies from Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), the opposition fraud and crime watchdog, MPs were in no mood to quibble too much with the amending legislation.

Inequalities in Trade

THE WEST'S FOUR WEALTHiest nations—the United States, Britain, France and West Germany—have decided at a secret meeting in Paris, according to an authoritative source, not to recommend to the Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development a plan to extend trade preferences to poorer countries.

The plan has foundered, apparently, on United States policy of keeping its trade on a completely multilateral basis; that is, with each trading partner confronting the same tariff barriers as every other, with no special advantages or disadvantages for any.

This is a democratic principle but in the current situation where, among nations, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer, it is unfortunately not going to help the West if enormous economic inequities seem certain to be perpetuated.

Trade preference for poor and underdeveloped nations was the chief topic at the last meeting of the United Nations' Conference on Trade and Development, and it was made clear that the issue is regarded in many parts of the world as a test of the goodwill of the rich toward the poor.

There's no doubt that it is an awkward subject. Determining which countries should receive preference, and how much, could lead to a massive and cumbersome system of tariffs and quotas quite antithetic to the general goal of freer world trade. But, as many spokesmen at the UNCTD meeting pointed out, the benefits of free trade are quite illusory in cases where struggling, under-developed nations are attempting to compete against established industrial giants. The poor countries would be left to sustain themselves economically on the meagre returns from exploitation of raw materials — many of them subject to violent price fluctuations in world markets — while being unable to restrict a possibly destructive inflow of processed goods from the rich countries. Infant industries do, of course, grow up, and it would be advisable in any plan to provide for eventual termination of the concessions.

Three of the countries involved in the secret Paris talks, Britain, France and Germany, made it known several months ago that they favored some form of trade preference plan. It is even considered possible by some authorities on the subject that the Common Market, under French and German influence, along with Britain, might break away from the United States and institute a preference scheme of their own. As the wealthiest of the Western nations, the United States would thus be placed in an extremely embarrassing position—so much so that Washington might feel constrained to alter its present policy.

Logs and Spawning Grounds

A SIGNIFICANT DIFFERENCE has arisen between users of British Columbia's forest resources and Canadian fisheries interests—as well as a conflict between provincial and federal departments—as a result of the log drive down the Stellako River.

The federal authorities sought to ban the drive on the grounds that the plunging logs would gouge out gravel beds essential to salmon spawning. The provincial government took the position that any damage that might be caused—and it doubted any would—was negligible in comparison with the economic advantages of driving the logs.

A report on injury to spawning beds is being sought from the B.C. Research Council, which, incidentally, is both provincial and scientific.

When the report is completed, of course, the drive this year will be history, though the findings of the research group could influence policy in future years.

The controversy points up one of the self-inflicted disabilities of the provincial administration. Because the present party in power virtually eliminated its fisheries branch, on the grounds that fisheries came under federal jurisdiction, it now has no public servants of its own who could provide valuable advice when matters of controversy arise.

The public will be excused if it feels that British Columbia has ordered a log drive and told the federal authorities that they can whistle. But fisheries, though less economically important to the province than is forestry, are still a means of livelihood for many people, as well as an important source of food. While it would be wasteful to duplicate existing federal research and control agencies, there is still a need for an effective voice to represent this resource in the provincial government.

U Thant's Crucial Decision

THERE SEEMS TO BE UNANimous support for U Thant for another term as secretary-general of the United Nations. The one exception—and his position is expressed in a soft voice—appears to be U Thant himself. He would like to return to the type of living he left to assume the arduous responsibilities of the international office.

Personal considerations are at war with his clearly demonstrated sense of duty. But within a matter of weeks he must reach a decision. He might leave the post at the end of his current term. He might, pressed by the major powers within the United Nations, accept reappointment. Or he could remain in office temporarily while he helped to establish a successor.

U Thant sees the absence of mainland China as a repudiation of the name and ideals of the United Nations. He has been confronted by refusal on the part of some members to meet the financial commitments necessary to further the UN's work for peace. He has been forced, on occasion, to face the facts of naked power exercised by strong members of the organization. And he has frequently heard the screaming of hawks drown out the cooing of doves.

U Thant has excellent reasons to seek a peaceful retirement. Yet if he does, the United Nations will suffer a serious loss. He cannot be unaware of that fact, a point made frequently to him and about him by the spokesmen for many countries.

Proof of the Pudding . . .

THE AXIOM OF THE DAY HAS it that jobs are there for the young people who train for them.

Certainly the first graduation ceremonies of the B.C. Institute of Technology seem to bear out the statement. After the two-year course, 371 students graduated and each had a job waiting as he or she received a diploma.

This speaks volumes for the manner in which the institute has met its objectives. These were to provide students after successful completion of the university entrance course with additional and specialized post-secondary school education tailored to meet the needs of the times and the industries, businesses and professions of this province.

If there has been one shortcoming in the infancy of the new educational centre it has been in numbers. Prospective employers asked for more graduates than were available.

In the light of the promise implicit to those who enrolled for the courses, the pudding has been more than proved by the eating.

Voices Of Quebec

Montreal La Presse

ON the threshold of power in 1966, the Union Nationale is all for chasing from the public mind the old impressions of before 1960. The few party officials remaining from that era are the most categoric and the most voluble on the ever-burning subject of patronage . . . Premier-elect Johnson and Jean-Jacques Bertrand have made statements which leave no room for ambiguity.

Now at the steering wheel of Quebec affairs, the Union Nationale does not intend to give any ground to those seeking patronage or jobs or to those eager for paving contracts. They wish to make the new member a true legislator as well as a mediator between the citizens and the administration and the legislature.

To succeed in this extraordinary task of re-evaluating the role of a member, the party is appealing to the goodwill and co-operation of the public . . .

The Union Nationale will have to fight the battle against patronage on several fronts. First, against the old and new patronage-seekers that the almost unhoped for success of June 5 brought back to the surface.

Next at the level of public opinion, which it should inform objectively of its accomplishments and to which it should explain the distinction to be made between favoritism and the services which everyone has a right to expect from the government.

Finally, at the level of administrative organization which should be reorganized according to the needs of areas and constituencies, in such a way as to permit the member to fill his double role — very heavy — of legislator and mediator.

Sherbrooke La Tribune

HOW many Canadians realize that the multiplicity of strikes and the proportions they are taking constitute one of the gravest problems at the present time?

The situation is such that the federal labor minister, J. R. Nicholson, envisages the possibility of new legislation which would permit the government to regain control of the situation, which is getting out of hand . . .

Under the circumstances, who can blame the government for thinking of organizing itself to re-establish order? . . . Also, when the federal government speaks of replacing the right to strike by binding arbitration . . . rather than lifting their arms to heaven and invoking Zeus, why don't they study the suggestion more seriously?

The right to strike is in the process of becoming a sacred right which is being abused too often today.

Toughing Out the Longshore Strike

ALTHOUGH the economic consequences of the settlement between the longshoremen and the shipping federation are not easy to assess in the absence of more detailed information, it would appear from what is known that the union has achieved gains much exceeding any probable increase in productivity and that some increase in shipping costs is therefore to be anticipated. There is, however, another side to the coin. The government was faced with a complex of strikes or threatened strikes in the transportation field. By toughing it out in the case of the Quebec dispute, ministers may have averted graver troubles in future.

Western

The strike lasted for 36 days, provoking strident demands for parliamentary intervention. Mr. Nicholson, the minister of labor, faced daily barrages of questions from opposition members and on one occasion Mr. Speaker Lamoureaux permitted a special debate on the issue as a matter of urgent national importance.

As recently as Monday, Mr. Starr made a second attempt to adjourn the House. He failed to secure general support on the opposition side and Mr. Speaker declined to accept the Conservative motion, partly because the various party spokesmen had been able to express their views earlier in response to a hopeful statement by the minister.

The government was also berated in the press and subjected to heavy pressure by various affected groups across the country.

Varied Advice

Advice varied according to the source. The New Democrats wanted to end the strike by parliamentary intervention without compulsory arbitration. What the Conservatives wanted is less clear. In summing up on Tuesday Mr. Starr hoped that the government "will in future accept its responsibility and act as mediators between two parties in a legal process of collective bargaining." But much more was suggested, by plain inference, in the earlier questions addressed to the government by Mr. Diefenbaker.

On May 17, the Conservative leader said: "Mr. Speaker, I wish the minister had gone so far as to say whether this mediator would have the power and authority to determine the course that would be followed. If the mediator does not have that power, then the national crisis facing us will not be settled."

On June 2, he referred to a speculative remark by the minister and asked: ". . . does the government intend to take proceedings similar to those that were taken by the government of Right Hon. Mr. St. Laurent during the period of office of that government?" (The reference was to a form of compulsory arbitration.)

On June 3, he was more specific: "Under the circumstances does the government intend to regard the national welfare as of some importance and take action along the line that was taken some years ago by the St. Laurent government?"

He pressed a similar question on June 8, charging that 30 million bushels of wheat sales had been lost.

Thus, when he said on June 13, "Parliament should be acting on this," it is reasonable to assume that he had in mind action through the imposition of compulsory arbitration.

The dispute had to do with two matters, wages and productivity. The federation was willing to grant increases but insisted on an end to featherbedding. There had been a settlement of similar nature on the West coast. However, in Quebec the situation was complicated by the rivalry between the CLC and the CNTU. Some suspicion existed that the longshoremen's union would have welcomed a parliamentary settlement of the type suggested by the New Democrats; thereby gaining the essence of their demands while placing responsibility for a settlement on Parliament and thus protecting themselves against attack by a rival union organization.

The effect of parliamentary intervention is to shift a dispute from the bargaining table to the plane of politics. In the past Parliament has extricated itself from such situations by the payment of tribute in the form of subsidies. This is obviously impossible for private employers who do not have access to the public treasury.

If the government had yielded to the pressure for parliamentary action in the case of the longshoremen, the lesson would scarcely have been lost on other unions in the transportation field. We might have had a succession of strikes aimed at political settlements with cumulative inflationary effects. As it was, the prime minister lent his good offices in the final settlement but only after the issues had been clarified and narrowed to one or two outstanding points by the regular legal processes of collective bargaining, conciliation and mediation.

But at least the dispute was kept out of the parliamentary forum in which rival parties compete in generosity at the taxpayer's expense. For this gain, a price was paid — no strike of such a character can last so long without damage to wider interests. This must be set against the price, unknown but probably even higher, which the country would be called upon to pay if the government, in an inflationary situation conducive to strikes of all kinds, should show itself weakly submissive to pressure for parliamentary intervention.

American Cities—The Future Ghettoes

THE other day, without much fanfare, it was announced that in the last 12 months the New York city school system had lost 25,000 white pupils and had gained 36,500 Negro and Puerto Rican pupils. If we were more given to thinking about the future, the story should have led every newspaper in the country.

Alsop

For the fact of the matter is that the grim Negro ghettoes that are now contained within our great northern cities are not merely self-perpetuating. If present trends continue, the ghettoes are actually due to become roughly co-extensive with the cities themselves. New York itself will be the ghetto, instead of its Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant slum areas.

To see why this is so, it is only necessary to look at the racial composition of the elementary school populations in our great urban centres. The school population of today, rather obviously, approximately foreshadows the city's population of tomorrow.

Negro City

Thus Washington is already a Negro city, with a fairly thin white facade composed of the federal government, the business district and the white residential areas. But Washington today, with a mere Negro majority, is still very different from the easily foreseeable Washington of tomorrow — the Washington that is predicted by the fact that Negro children now comprise 91 per cent of the pupils in the elementary schools.

Washington is merely the most extreme case, moreover. The Negro pupils in the elementary schools of Detroit have reached 57.3 per cent. In Baltimore they have reached 64.3 per cent. In St. Louis they have reached 66 per cent. In Philadelphia they have reached 57 per cent. And in Chicago, they have reached 52.3 per cent.

That means, very simply, that Detroit, Baltimore, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Chicago are all pretty certain to be cities with Negro majorities in the next generation. Furthermore, the case of Washington makes it quite obvious that if these cities reach this degree of imbalance — of de facto segregation, in short — they will strongly tend to become full ghettoes with an almost completely Negro population.

It is a tragic fact, but it is a fact that has to be faced, that there is a kind of critical point, beyond which, in present circumstances, the full ghetto-situation becomes inevitable. In Washington, the percentage of Negro pupils in the high schools is substantially less than in the elementary schools, and it is still less among adults qualified to become voters. But the critical point has seemingly been passed nonetheless.

This would be much more obvious if the prosperous white sections of the city did not, so to say, live an ioslated life of their own. But behind this facade, the white movement to the suburbs continues apace, despite the efforts to reverse it. The movement also continues in all other cities above-listed, as it does in New York. And as the schools more and more become ghetto schools, the movement in all these cities will predictably accelerate.

Less Massive Problem

New York, which is usually thought of as the prime ghetto-city, actually has a less massive problem than those listed above. The Puerto Ricans, although they come to New York as deeply disadvantaged as the poor Negro immigrants from the south, have proved somewhat more able to escape from the ghetto-situation, no doubt because they suffer less from the ugly pressures of racial discrimination. And in New York, two fifths of the ghetto-population is Puerto Rican.

Thus in New York, Negro pupils comprise just under 30 per cent of the school population, which also has close to 20 per cent of Puerto Rican pupils. But in almost every major American city, including those which now have rather small Negro populations, the broad trend is much the same. And the process is going forward at a much more rapid rate than almost anyone supposes.

At the end of the road, a wholly new America can now be foreseen. Unless the trend is reversed, this more and more urban country is also going to be a country whose cities are mainly Negro ghettoes, surrounded by thick, smugly affluent fringes of white suburbs. This is a development which may suit the black nationalists among the Negro leaders; but it is certainly not a development that ought to satisfy any thinking American, whether Negro or white.

It must be added that there are many other aspects of this vast and complex problem that urgently need examination, such as the present role of parochial and other non-public schools and the future economic consequences of the ghetto-cities that can now be foreseen. But these aspects must be covered in another report.

Sales Pitch

I have just had a sales pitch — not a straightforward one, however — and I, like most people, am skeptical of such selling tactics. Here's how it works.

The salesman impresses you, first, with a come-on, a chance in a $7,000 or so draw, at no cost, then tells you how successful the company is with manufacturing this and that. Next comes the big cardboard box which contains a secret article. You see, he hasn't even told me what he sells yet. With a little fanfare he pops open the box and extracts the "whatchamacallit." This "whatchamacallit" really works well and has the oomph to clean, plus many fine little innovations.

How much? Oh, he says, you'll like this. $199.95, and you refer him to your friends and for each and every one he sells you'll receive $25 cash. Just think — eight of those and you'll have your machine paid off in full! But wait, says I, suppose my references don't buy. Do I hold the bag? Well, says he, that's unlikely. The way I see it, says I, once you sign the contract you're in for a lot more than maybe you can handle.

The final shot-in-the-arm, you might say, is a little letter from the bank that is not my bank in town, addressed to the company concerned, showing the amount paid out to happy people from the referral system. What it should contain is the amount of sales in dollars that the company handled during that period.—Dave S. Preston, 2857 Wyndeatt.

Protesteth Too Loudly

Anent the lengthy diatribe by Davie Fulton (under the protection of the House) published in Tuesday's Times, may I be permitted to quote the renowned Wm S—?

"Methinks the gentleman protesteth too loudly, his innocence?"

Shakespeare would have been more helpful to D.F. in the following:

Surprisingly we haven't heard from Old Windbag yet. Probably the worst is yet to come.

BRUSSELS NEW EUROCAPITAL?

By KARL E. MEYER
The Washington Post

BRUSSELS — The European Economic Community (Euromart) has its headquarters in this city. Euratom is also here. Now NATO is about to transfer military headquarters from Paris to the Brussels area. NATO political headquarters are expected to follow.

Will Brussels really become the Eurocapital? Does this city of 1.3 million deserve continental eminence? A fair answer might be that Brussels deserves more than Washington to be a continental capital — this city is more centrally located, has better food, cheaper housing and a more varied cultural life.

But Europeans tend to sniff at Brussels. They make snide remarks about the Bruxellois, (the correct word for local inhabitants). They repeat, with unseemly relish, the derisive remark that The Congo is the Belgium of Africa while the Belgians are the Congolese of Europe.

One girl who works for NATO felt moved to say, "If NATO leaves Paris for this, I leave NATO."

After a working visit of five days, an outsider can say it's not that bad. Not quite.

The arguments for Brussels as Eurocapital can be summarized under these headings:

1. Convenience. If Brussels is not exactly "the turntable of Europe," as an official brochure asserts, it is surely more pivotally placed than most other capitals. The rest of Europe seems only an hour away by jet, helicopter or rail — and Belgium's fine high-speed railway network covers the country from Aalst to Zoutleeuw.

2. Local amenities. The cuisine consists of good food served in overwhelming quantities. The authoritative Michelin Guide awards three two-stars and five one-stars to deserving restaurants in Brussels proper. Diplomats are fattened and made more agreeable at places like the Couronne, overlooking the Grand Place, where the war on hunger is waged with determination.

Fine Public Galleries

3. Art. Brussels not only has some fine public galleries filled with Flemish masterpieces — It is also within easy reach of great collections in Antwerp and Bruges (a lovely medieval town that is a museum in itself).

4. Theater. A dozen theatres are offering everything from Racine's "Berenice" to Brecht's "Mere Courage." Local inhabitants say the National Opera has improved markedly since the Common Market staff settled here in 1959. The invasion has also encouraged other art forms — A jazz club is now advertising "The Boozers, straight from Nashville, U.S.A."

5. Hotels and housing. The inevitable Brussels Hilton is soon to augment the varied and comfortable hotel resources. New offices are rising everywhere, including the Berlaimont, future home of 5,500 Eurocrat officials. Named after a convent originally located on the site, the curving cross-shaped Berlaimont is due to be completed in 1968.

Brussels is also that rare palce — A slumless city in which even luxury housing is low-priced. Some fortunate families are renting apartments for $150 a month that would fetch triple that amount in Paris. The advent of some 5,000 NATO families jeopardizes this paradise, which partly explains local grumbling about the move.

But Brussels is inhabited by the Belgians. All national generalizations are treacherous, but three traits quickly impress the visitor. The Belgians tend to be earthy and fractious, and to display the same brutal realism so evident in early Flemish art.

The Favorite Citizen

Consider, for example, the Manneken Pis. If Paris has as its symbol the Eiffel Tower — a spire reaching to the sky — Brussels has this small statue of a boy watering a fountain with unashamed directness. "Petit Julien" is deemed Brussels favorite citizen, and cheap replicas often tasteless, clutter souvenir shops.

Concerning fractiousness, there is the chronic conflict between the Flemish and the French-speaking Walloons. Much of Belgium is being rent by a ferocious dispute over Louvain University, since the 15th century one of the great centers of Catholic learning.

The issue is whether the university should be split along language lines (both the Flemish and Walloons are Catholics). A council of bishops recently recommended that some institutes be transferred to Wavre (a town also mentioned as a possible SHAPE site) but that French and Flemish both continue is use at Louvain, which is Flemish territory.

Anti-French demonstrations and hunger strikes broke out. Cardinal Suenens, primate of Belgium, was publicly insulted and banners were flourished contending "God Is No Longer Flemish." This perplexing outbreak among the normally devout Flemish is a symptom of a deepening split felt everywhere, including bilingual Brussels.

There Is Brutal Realism

Finally, there is the brutal realism. Where else but Brussels do taxi drivers dictate the tip that must be proferred? (A semi-subway system, due for completion in 1972, may bring some change.) Brussels also boasts a pink-light district where "hostesses" pose in dimly-lit windows, beckoning passers-by. The girls are greedily awaiting NATO. "We are without patience for S.H.A.P.E.," one of them volunteered.

All of this no doubt will provide themes for talk over a glass of beer (Belgium leads the world in beer-drinking) among the thousands who will be coming to the new Eurocapital.

Quebec's Separatists Were Not Vanquished

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Correspondent

McDowell

QUEBEC CITY — In Quebec, if not outside it, most of the post-mortems since the June 5 election have given a big place to the six per cent of the vote that went to the Rassemblement Pour L'Independance Nationale.

Claude Ryan, influential editor of Le Devoir, and a federalist himself, wrote that English Canadians who sighed with relief at the RIN showing were comforting themselves with a much too superficial interpretation of the vote.

Far from being the great loser it might appear at first glance to have been, Mr. Ryan suggested that the RIN was in reality the "arbiter or invisible catalyst" that had put the Union Nationale in and the Liberals out.

View Shared

His view is shared by most who have worked out the voting arithmetic, riding by riding.

All indications are that the Liberals are in a tight squeeze between the older, more traditionally-minded segments of the population, who support the Ralliement National and the Union Nationale, and the young, well-educated people who are the core of the RIN support.

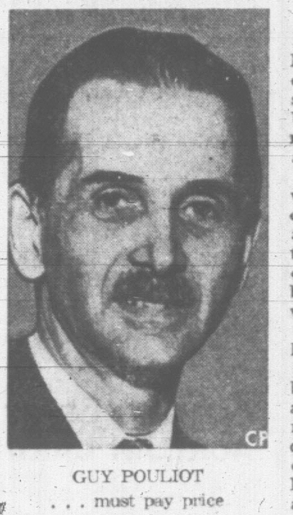
If this view is correct it means that even without any increase in support the RIN would be a force to be reckoned with in Quebec politics.

But the RIN is confident that its support will grow, and many observers who are not necessarily RIN supporters themselves agree.

The RIN sees one of its great gains of the election in the "certificate of respectability," as one member put it, acquired by participating in the campaign as a recognized party. The RIN ran a vigorous, orderly campaign that did much to dispel any idea that its members were wild-eyed extremists.

RIN leaders also believe that their constitutional position, complete independence for Quebec, is the only workable alternative to Confederation.

They argue that such formulas as associate states, proposed by the RN, or associate nations, to which UN leader Daniel Johnson is committed, are constitutional monstrosities to which English-speaking Canada would never agree.



CP

GUY POULIOT
. . . must pay price

They believe English Canada would sooner accept outright separation than a two-nation stalemate in a single state, a point upon which such English-speaking authorities on Canada's constitution as Eugene Forsey agree.

To the RIN, any attempt by Mr. Johnson to make headway with his associate-nations plan can only end up by demonstrating the plan to be impossible and helping to prove that the only real choice is between Confederation and Independence. They have no doubt that, faced with this clear choice, most Quebeckers would choose independence.

Already one half of Quebec's population, and more than half of the French-speaking population, has voted for parties that are either clearly for separation or else for something close to separation with full independence as a last resort.

RIN Leader

Guy Pouliot, one of the leaders and a former president of the RIN, sees the supporters of the RN and the UN as "people who want nationalism without changing anything."

He argues that Quebeckers will never have the "self-determination" that the UN and the RN call for, unless they are ready to shoulder the extra problems and responsibilities that independence would bring.

"We have to pay the price," he said in an interview.

But by paying that price, he believes, Quebeckers would acquire a sense of being responsible for their own destiny that would be a driving force toward the collective effort needed to build a thriving modern society in Quebec.

Independence

Mr. Pouliot said he felt this sense of responsibility so important that if he had to choose between a unilingually French province and a bilingual but independent Quebec he would put independence first.

But he is for a single language as well because it is "practical and normal."

By such measured arguments as these, heard from one end of the province to the other during the election campaign, by its commitment to democratic methods and its progressive economic and social platform, the RIN has won respect even among it most firm opponents and has become a force that no party in Quebec can afford to ignore.

Exhaust Gas Hazard Pondered by Doctors

Die Welt, Hamburg

Physicians who are members of the German Medical Association (NAV) stressed the fact that air, especially around industrial centres is "poisoned" with many different chemical substances which have passed almost unnoticed up to now but which, if continually inhaled, could lead to serious illness.

One of such poisons, said the doctors in Essen, is manganese.

After some months of continued and unnoticed breathing of this substance and absorption into the respiratory organs, the results might be lethargy, nocturnal perspiration, loss of appetite and edema of the legs.

These are relatively harmless symptoms. Recent investigations, however, have shown that the manganese content of the air can also lead to a serious illness similar to multiple sclerosis.

The illness cause by manganese is comparable to the stereotype phenomenon of decay cause by old age. Forced laughter and forced crying, drowsiness and severe mental disturbances are also cause by this substance.

Experts have known for some time that the presence of phosphorus in the air is dangerous.

Together with other substances, it is normally present in the exhaust gases from the converters of the steel industry. Prolonged inhalation of phosphorus also leads to loss of weight and body decay.

Liver Damage

Quite frequently, chronic mouth and gum diseases are caused by phosphorus in the air. Much more dangerous, however, is the damage it can do to the liver. According to recent medical investigations, phosphorus is to blame for certain diseases of the liver.

Exhaust gases from cars which quite often contain a concentration of cancerogenic substances were also cited by the NAV in their list of dangerous air polluters.

Veterinarians in large cities have had an increase in the number of cases of dogs with cancerous tumours in the respiratory organs. Being so close to the ground, dogs inhale more concentrated amounts of polluted air than do their masters.

According to the experts, the lead-ethyl content in petrol is a special problem. Tiny traces of lead get into the bloodstream through the lungs and are finally deposited in the membrane covering the brain.

Intelligence Loss

American doctors are inclined to hold these deposits of lead responsible for the supposed increase in loss of intelligence.

Alarming, too, is the accumulation of carbon monoxide coming from long lines of cars or leaking into the car from a damaged exhaust pipe.

Carbon monoxide reduces oxygen in the blood and the result is momentary loss of consciousness and false reactions which, according to the NAV, are summed up in one short sentence often seen in police reports: "The driver lost control of his car."

Famous Last Words

Thomas Fuller
(1608-1661)

This famous English clergyman and philosopher ("Many would be cowards, if they had courage enough") wrote on many complex subjects in the mid-Seventeenth Century, but the epitaph he requested should be engraved on his tomb was an extremely simple one. It consisted of two words: "Fuller's Earth."

CHINA DIARY

Anti-Imperial Films And Lacquered Ducks

By FRANCOIS SULLY

(Mr. Sully is a Newsweek correspondent recently returned from a 20-day, five-week journey through China. This is the second in a series of articles based on his diary.)

PEKING — Canton was like a tropical city but Peking is almost freezing.

The Hotel of Nationalities, where I am booked, is half filled with Chinese in padded blue overcoats, come from outlying provinces to attend conferences. In the evenings, we all assemble in a hotel foyer to watch Chinese television.

The news program is devoted to a long documentary on political unrest in Viet Nam, apparently pirated from NBC and CBS, and scenes of racial and anti-war demonstrations in the United States.

Then comes a Cantonese opera where girl and boy playfully compete for the only rifle in their militia group. This is as close to love scenes as the puritanical Chinese movie industry will go.

Current Hit

"The East Is Red," is the current hit on Wang Fu Ching Street. It is a flamboyant, cinemascope-type superproduction retracing China's revolution from the Canton Commune in 1927 to the defeat of Chiang Kai-sheks armies. The multicolored costumes are beautiful and the singing thrilling.

A famous eating place in Peking is the "Restaurant of the Lacquered Duck." The only dish is duck prepared in 12 different ways. The restaurant is 110 years old and so are the recipes. The ducks are raised by the house in the manner of the geese in Strasbourg.

I visited the chef, who stands in front of a wood-fueled oven slowly turning a fat duck over the flame. When we finished the meal ($8 for two), the chef opened the door, wished us goodnight and shook our hand — just like Paris in the old days.

It is May, and not a blade of grass, not a wild flower grows along the narrow road traveled by mule carts. There is not even an insect in the air. Thousands of children and soldiers along the road are planting windbreaks of trees in an effort to erect a new Great Wall against the Mongolian tornadoes.

Ninety miles from Peking, the Great Wall remains the prime attraction for Chinese sightseers. Picknickers on the Great Wall wolf chunks of rye bread, hard-boiled eggs and apples, drink beer from the bottle, play a game of cards similar to the American game of hearts and have their pictures taken against the crenelated silhouette of the historic ruins.

Good Railroads

Railroads in China are well-run and cities, industries and ports are all located along main railway lines. Trains run on time but rarely exceed 45 miles per hour on the single-track lines. Efforts to double the tracks between Peking and Shanghai have been abandoned during the "economic adjustment" following the Great Leap Forward.

Between Peking and Tsinan, I shared a sleeper with three Chinese travelers, including a navy officer in a blue-grey uniform. Officers no longer wear rank insignia but are easily identified by the better quality of their uniform.

First-class railroad passengers in China travel in grand style. There is a potted plant and pots of jasmine tea in the compartment, and flowers and fancy bottles of sweet Chinese wild grape wine on the tables in the dining car. The menu is in English, Russian and Chinese. The Chinese food would rate a star in the Michelin Guide.

Everything would be perfect except for the martial music from the loudspeakers. Unbothered, my fellow passengers concentrate on a tense game of Chinese chess. I don't play, and the attendant kindly offered me comic books portraying how poor peasants punished a wicked landlord who in the middle of the night imitated the rooster's crow to get his laborers into the fields earlier.

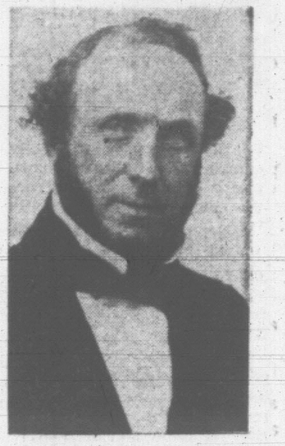
(Next: Beautification program at ancient Tsinan.)

Founders Of B.C.

Cattle were precious to the first settlers at Fort Victoria and when Indians feasted on some of the fort's livestock Roderick Finlayson put a stop to it with a cannon.

Finlayson, who came with James Douglas to found the Hudson's Bay Company fort in 1843, was in charge of the fort the following year. When Indians killed some grazing oxen, he sent for the chief. Questioned, the chief got mad. He stalked off in a rage and assembling his Songhees and some Cowichans, peppered the fort with musketry.

Finlayson sent an Indian from the Fort to the chief's lodge with instruction to clear everyone out of it. Then Finlayson blew it apart with a nine-pounder loaded with grape shot. The next day the cattle were paid for in furs.



Roderick Finlayson

Roderick Finlayson, born in Scotland in 1818, was sent to America in 1837 as a fur company clerk. He served in posts on the Ottawa River until 1839 when he crossed by canoe and horseback to the Pacific coast. He traded on the Columbia, on Puget Sound, at Fort Langley, Fort Stikine and Fort Simpson. In 1843 he assisted in the removal of properties from Fort McLoughlin on Milbanke Sound, to the south end of Vancouver Island where Fort Victoria was being built on an area roughly 100 yards square and behind an 18-feet-high wall of cedar pickets.

In charge of the post for many years, Finlayson was made chief trader in 1850 and chief factor in 1859. He served on the Legislative Council of the island colony from 1851 to 1863. Retired in 1872, he died in Victoria 20 years later.

Canada Is Not Suffering Any Population Explosion

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Sex as a matter of national policy did not excite much interest in the hearings that the Commons' health and welfare committee held on bills to legalize the sale of contraceptives.

Waring

National policy? Sex?

Exactly. Oh, nothing as crude as Napoleon Bonaparte's comment that his army could recoup its battlefield losses in one night of leave in Paris. But Canada has a lot more space than it has people to fill. Our population density of 5.12 persons per square mile is one of the lowest in a world that generally suffers from over-population. It's almost axiomatic that, in the long run, if Canadians want to keep Canada they will have to fill it—and contraception is a very good way not to fill it.

One committee member, Dr. P. B. Rynard (Conservative—Simcoe E., Ont.) even suggested that the time may come when "we will have to give people some incentive to raise children"—a super baby bonus, on top of the present family allowances intended to help support children.

* * *

All the emphasis in the committee hearings was on the right of couples to plan their families, the right of a woman to avoid pregnancy, the tragedy of the unwanted child, the economic hardship of having large families, and the moral considerations of contraception. Except for Dr. Rynard's thought-provoking comment, the demographic aspect of contraception was sloughed off with references to the world population explosion.

What the committee didn't bother discovering is that there's no explosion in Canada. In the interests of a well-rounded inquiry and a well-documented report, the committee might have called in expert witnesses. It failed to do so, choosing instead to ignore the potentially disastrous effect of contraception on Canada's national development.

Had the committee taken a broader approach it would have discovered that there has been a rapid decline in the national birth rate since January, 1961, when oral contraceptives were introduced in this country.

In 1960, the last pre-pill year, there were 478,551 live births, or 26.8 per thousand population. In 1965 the Bureau of Statistics estimates there were only 419,000 live births, or 21.4 per thousand population.

* * *

That is a rate decline of 20 per cent since the advent of The Pill.

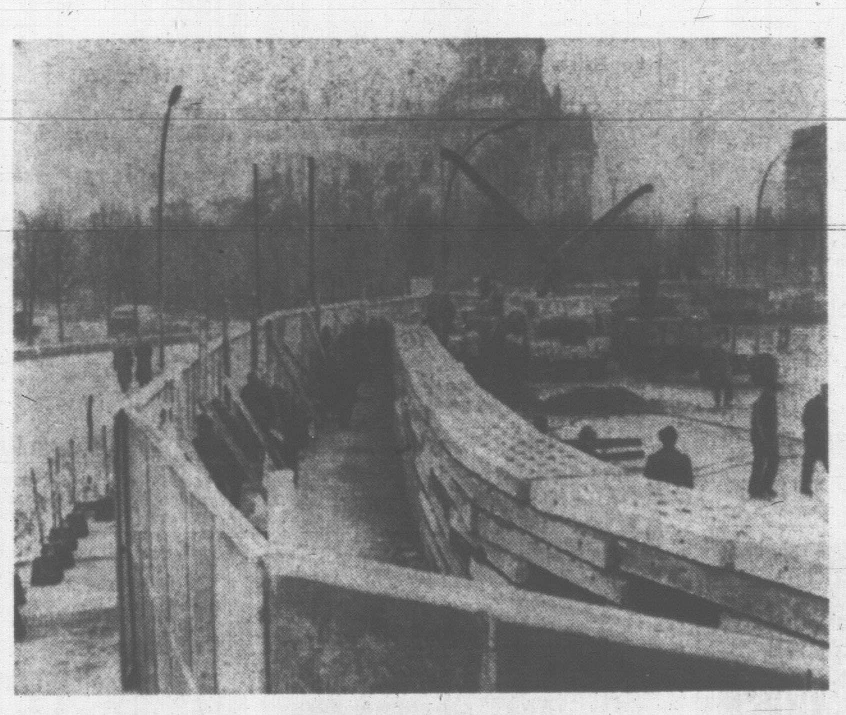
It occurred despite a rising marriage curve—there were a record 143,000 marriages in 1965 compared with 138,000 in 1964.

It occurred in spite of the greatest affluence the Canadian people have ever known.

And it occurred in spite of a legal prohibition on the sale of contraceptives and the dissemination of information on contraception.

The birth rate hasn't been this low since the depression of the 1930's, when it dropped to 20.1. That depression low may be matched or exceeded this year: in January births were down 10.8 per cent from January, 1965; in February they were down 6.4 per cent, and in March they were down 5 per cent.

The committee considers this is irrelevant to its narrow objective of recommending to Parliament whether contraceptives should be legalized. Irrelevant or not, the committee can recommend with greater ease of mind if it ignores what is happening to the birth rate.



The Wall: A Barrier to Christ?

What is it like to be a Christian in a communist nation? Is it possible to worship God in a nation that officially despises Him? What problems do believers face when they wish to worship together?

You can hear the answers to these and other pertinent questions Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Oak Bay Junior High Auditorium. At that time Mr. Carl Spain, professor of Bible at Abilene Christian College, will speak on the topic, "The Power of Christ Behind the Iron Curtain."

As he develops this lesson, Mr. Spain will present a series of colored slides that he made during his two extensive visits to Russia and Poland.

This is not a lecture on Communism. Rather, it is the story of loyal Polish and Russian citizens who have managed to remain true to Christ without violating the laws of the land. It will be a vivid demonstration of the fact that Christianity in its purest form is in no way tied to one particular economic or political theory.

Aided by the colored slides, Mr. Spain will explain how Christians, once they were refused the right to meet publicly, continued to worship at home as "family congregations." He will show how the communist leaders have taken such Biblical imagery as the dove of peace and the turning of swords into plowshares and have used them to glorify the communist cause.

What is it like, then, to be a Christian in a communist nation? You will want to hear Mr. Carl Spain Saturday night as he explains, "I have found no greater joy among Christians than I found among these people."

Did Bennett Sense an 'Anti-Mood' In Banking Snap Election Fire?

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Next Thursday Manitoba will go to the polls to choose its next provincial administration.

Unfortunately for me, that's the day I had predicted (way back in January) we would see a general election in this province.

We'll have to wait and see whether it's fortunate for Premier Bennett that he did not call a spring election after all.

Mika

He may seem invincible, but on recent trips I've heard more grumbling than praise in the Socred hinterland.

The disasters that befell the apparently safe Quebec Liberals and the Prince Edward Island Conservatives indicate this spring was a bad time for any government to go to the polls. If Manitoba's Conservative Premier Duff Roblin, who holds about the same proportion of seats as does Mr. Bennett, also bites the dust, it should prove the proposition.

In both Quebec and Prince Edward Island, there was an absence of a real issue during the campaigns—as there is now in Manitoba—while there was plenty of evidence of a generally anti-government mood in the country at large.

Premier Bennett certainly showed all the signs, overtly and to his intimates, of wanting a snap election yet he drew back from the brink. Why?

No one has a certain answer but I would suggest that the reason was his instinctive realization that he, too, had no real issue and without it could not be sure of winning.

GROWING SKILL

The premier exerted himself mightily during the session to manoeuvre the Opposition into giving him an issue on his terms. The fact that he did not get it attests to the growing political skill of both Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and Liberal Leader Ray Perrault.

In retrospect, perhaps the most important single aspect of the last session was the Opposition's out-manoeuvring of a premier who generally is considered one of the greatest masters of political footwork this province has seen.

It is the first time that has happened since 1952 and for that reason alone is worth noting.

AUGUST CALL?

A growing number of Socred MLAs—many of whom expected a spring election—now are predicting privately that the call will come Aug. 1 when the premier attends the 14th anniversary celebrations of the Social Credit League's emergence as a government party. The event, perhaps significantly, will be held in his hometown of Kelowna.

An election call then would place voting day sometime in mid-September. Those predicting this development say that the various labor disputes which come to a head in B.C. this summer will provide the makings of an issue for a campaign.

That is a possibility, but I wonder if it is not being slowly strangled by current events in Ottawa.

Prime Minister Pearson has had considerable success in heading off major transportation strikes that seemed inevitable.

If a politician who is frequently depicted as a vacillating, bumbling amateur can do that, will the electorate here expect less from a politician who is depicted as a purposeful, dynamic professional? I doubt it.

So, if any of the woodworkers, pulp workers or carpenters' disputes results in a long strike or even a donnybrook before a last-minute settlement, it will tend to diminish the government's image.

It will be not impossible, of course, but difficult to pin the blame entirely on labor if there is a recent and shining example of federal government success in mediating disputes.

If it does turn out that way, it won't be the first time this year that developments in the national capital have forced the premier to dance to someone else's tune. That, too, is worth noting.

GRILL SUSPECTS

Secret Agent Sent On Hamburger Caper

By JIM HUME

Next time you eat a hamburger at the A and W drive-in on Oak Bay Avenue, chew quietly. The man in the next car might be a secret agent from city hall checking on noise levels.

The city's health committee decided Thursday that an undercover agent was the only step left in the anti-noise campaign.

For months residents adjacent to the drive-in have complained that screaming tires, honking horns and raucous youths have disturbed their slumbers.

City manager Dennis Young told the committee this morning that short of closing down the business the operator could do no more than he has already done to soften the night sounds.

"He has done everything he can," he said. "I can't recall a businessman who has been more co-operative with us and the city police. He has even gone out and laid informations against some of his customers in order to keep the operation quiet."

Ald. Clyde Savage said he was by no means sure that the drive-in operation was the real culprit.

"I live on a busy street myself and it isn't at all unusual to be awakened in the early hours by screaming tires," he said. "I think we should try to find out just where the noise in this area is coming from. It may be that it's just the normal but annoying noise of city traffic."

Mayor A. W. Toone agreed.

As a result Mr. Young was requested to arrange for an undercover check on the area at unspecified times.

"We don't want a man in uniform standing out like a sore thumb," said Ald. Savage.

SEEKING SNORTS

So, sometime during the next two weeks, a rookie policeman will draw his first undercover assignment.

Dressed in civvies he'll prowl the A and W lot to ascertain the decibel volume of mastication as compared with the snorts of a cracked muffler.

Caught in Vicious Circle, Indians Need Counselling

By PETE LOUDON

A crash program of family counselling is recommended by Chief Edwin Underwood to help improve reserve conditions. Indian agent R. H. S. Sampson says housing loans should replace inadequate grant allocations. They agree in this concluding article on reserve problems, that with such assistance the Indians are capable of improving their lot. But is anyone at Ottawa listening?

"The white people say: 'We'll get the Indians to dance for us.'

"We're trying to advance ourselves and they're trying to knock us back.

"The white man will never say he'll come over and dance for us. He says his time is very valuable."

Loudon

Chief Underwood says he's grateful for the large number of non-Indian friends he and his people have in this area.

He's not against the recent interest of the white community in promoting preservation of Indian arts and crafts.

But he'd like to see the white man's government honoring its commitments to the native Indians in a more material manner.

"People are very sympathetic. And they keep asking 'Chief, what can we do to help.' But nothing ever changes very much," he says.

He mentioned Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton.

"He asked to meet us and hear about our problems. He said 'I'll bring it up at Ottawa.'

"And then a little book comes from Ottawa. (Hansard). I look in there to see what he has to say about us. The chief's examination, he says, has revealed "nothing."

"We pay the 5 per cent tax to B.C. If we work off the reserve we pay income tax. The tax on gas—we pay it. We buy licences for cars.

●

"So we asked Highways Minister Gaglardi for a subsidy to help us repair our roads. We still have to repair our roads from our small budget. We were refused. We would have to make our roads public roads. But we want our privacy."

Does he ask neighboring communities for help? He says that shouldn't ever be necessary. The federal government agreed to look after the Indians when it took their lands in early days.

The federal government this year allocated $80,000 to the local Indian agency for new housing. The agency extends southward from the Qualicum River. Its 23 Indian communities are home to 4,000 people.

The chief said that on his reserve alone, "We could use 20 new houses. How much of a dent would that make in the $80,000?"

●

The money must be sliced so thin that Brentwood Reserve, for instance, gets $7,000. Yet Brentwood needs 30 new homes. With even the least elaborate of appointments and with the occupants providing the labor, to fill the need would cost $300,000.

In the Duncan area the allocation is $14,000 which might build two houses. There are 32 applicants there.

Chief Underwood says there was a time when his band had a useful central fund to augment federal housing allowances. But that was 10 or 15 years ago before the timber on the reserve was logged away.

Much of that money went to dig the 190-foot-deep well and to pipe the water to stand pipes or into about 20 homes which have a tap supply.

●

The money is almost gone now. That leaves future advances up to the sparse budget of the Indian department, or up to the individual.

And the individual Indian, just like the individual white man, colored man or oriental, often needs a helping hand.

"There is no basic difference in the white and the Indian in his hopes, fears, ambitions and aspirations.

"The Indian is willing to accept the responsibility for improving his circumstances—but we don't always provide the opportunity."

●

That's a quote from Ronald H. S. Sampson, the Indian agent at Duncan who administers to lower Vancouver Island reserves.

And he can cite case after case of Indians who have made the most of every opportunity that came their way. Certainly there are poor houses on some reserves, but there are also Indians with neat, comfortable, well-kept houses.

Certainly there are many school drop-outs. But there are also youngsters who go through high school. Many parents crumble under the forces of unemployment and poverty. But others are capable and loving parents, standing tall with a pride in their ancestry, Mr. Sampson points out.

And he has high praise for the leaders the Indians have elected and the strength the Indian community shows under that leadership when it comes to looking after its own.

Mr. Sampson is almost belligerent until you understand that the Indian community has as many levels of progress as the white community. When you understand that, then he'll discuss the needy areas with you.

He agrees with the social workers who claim that many Indians have lived so long with tragedy and disappointment it is easy for them to quit fighting for better conditions.

But given some direction most Indians will work hard to help themselves. He says they have proved this in the projects they have launched where they have had adequate band funds. He points to plans for a Somenos shopping centre and residential subdivisions planned for the Komiaken and Quamichan areas.

At Coles Bay, the band council has recently approved an engineering study for a reserve townsite with housing.

. . . INDIANS NEED HELP

piped water, sewerage and road services. It will be financed partly by band funds and partly by a federal appropriation. The individual will be required to make his contribution too. And there's reason for optimism that the project will succeed.

He says the Cowichan Band council on its own initiative recently sent a committee to meet with Cowichan School Board to make tentative plans on a joint project which will see a part time social worker engaged on family counselling in the reserve.

Family counselling is held by some social workers to be a key to the problems of all the reserves.

They say there must be instruction available on money management. And in many Indian homes, just as in many non-Indian homes, basic home economics, sanitation and housekeeping training is a sore need.

But more important, many Indian parents who have never had much schooling themselves, must be taught the importance of keeping their children in school, strengthening their desire to learn and helping them overcome the setbacks of the still existing discrimination they will meet in many qquarters,

Many families coping with juvenile delinquency are also coping with parental delinquency—just the same as many non-Indian families. The ratio of broken homes is higher among those with the poorer educations.

There are 60 Indian children among the 510 children in charge of the Family and children's Service in Victoria. Mr. Sampson believes these children compare favorably with the white youngsters in educational potential.

Chief Underwood of East Saanich reserve believes that the hopes of his people rest with the children now going to school. If they could be kept in school and prepared to come back and act as counsellors on the reserves, other children would be encouraged to remain in school.

A higher standard of education would lead to more and better jobs—and better money management, he says.

And this would lead to improved housing.

Mr. Sampson agrees. He hopes for the day when the federal government will make sizeable long-term loans available to Indians on reserves for houses, instead of small housing grants which are always too small to meet the overall need.

Today, if a man on a reserve needs a home, he applies to the band council. If the band has funds it adds them to government housing grants and shares them among the needier applicants who themselves put up only about $200.

Even if the applicant is working, this is his only hope of getting the money he needs. He cannot get a loan from any source because his home cannot serve as collateral. It is built on band property and the owner never has clear title.

So for most Indians on reserves it is a futile circle. He has no home because he has no collateral and he really can't get up the down payment anyway, because he has no job.

He has no job because he too often has little education. He has too little education because his family often lacks the ability to help him and direct him and encourage him. Which brings it all back to family counselling as the elementary need, and housing loans as a secondary need.

There is some family counselling done now by Victoria Family and Children's Service. But this takes place after the family breakdowns, the desertions, the tragedies that result in children being turned over to the agency.

There is insufficient staff for a crash program of counselling or home-maker training by the local social workers. And basically, this is still the responsibility of the federal government, by statute.

●

This is where all concerned agree, the federal government is most at fault. This is the challenge to Ottawa and the new department of Indian Affairs being set up under Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing.

Counselling won't be easy. Chief Underwood warns "if you can sit them down so it goes right in, it might work. But many Indians will say 'yes' when he really doesn't understand. Your peole will often use words he can't understand.

"Our people have been torn from living in the ways of their fathers and they have great trouble in trying to live the white man's way. But I think they would be glad to take counselling. We have to change. We have to start somewhere."

This could be a centennial project with meaning and value to Canada in the future, says the chief.

Whites Charged In Negro's Murder

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP)—Sheriff Odell Andrews has charged three white men with murder in the death of a 65-year-old Negro whose bullet-riddled body was found in a creek.

Two of the men were listed earlier this year in the House of Representatives UN-American activities committee as past or present members of the Ku Klux Klan.

What Is
INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY?

Well, let's start with what represents Investment INEFFICIENCY: If you invested $2,000 at 7½%, repayable at $50 per month, such monthly repayment ceases to earn interest as do subsequent payments. This money in fact remains idle until funds accumulate to a suitable reinvestment sum.

We might overcome this by investing our $2,000 at 7½%, payable interest only quarterly, with principal payable in full, say, in three years. This is fine, if we wish to spend the interest for cost of living, as the entire principal "keeps busy."

But if you have no need to support your present cost of living with the earnings, MAXIMUM INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY can be effected by compounding your earnings. A 7½% investment compounded quarterly for 5 years provides a 45% growth ($1,000 returns $1,450.) To get this efficiency on really sound security buy Victoria Mortgage 7½% 5-year debentures with interest paid or compounded quarterly. We will be pleased to mail you full information through our prospectus. Phone Douglas Hawkes at EV 4-7128.

Victoria 13th in Multiple Listing Sales

Continued strong real estate activity here and in cities across the nation produced a $65 million increase in multiple listing sales for the first four months of 1966.

H. W. Follows, secretary of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, reports a 20 per cent increase for the January-April period this year compared with the same four months of 1965.

Victoria ranked 13th among the leading cities engaged in multiple listing sales, 60 of which report to the Canadian association.

There were sales valued at $5.6 million here against $5.1 million in the same period last year.

The .9 per cent increase in Victoria compares with as much as 579 per cent in Cornwall, where sales went from $42,000 for the 1965 four-month period to $282,000 to April 30 this year.

There were eight cities having an increase in excess of 100 per cent but none ranked higher than 20th place in the list of sales values.

Toronto was first with $106.3 million, up 19 per cent from $89.1 million, followed by Montreal at $31.78 million, up 29 per cent from $24.5 million.

Hamilton was next with $26.1 million, Vancouver fourth with $24.9 million, Ottawa fifth with $12.5 million, and Winnipeg sixth with $11.3 million.

In the first four months of 1965, Victoria sales were in 11th place among the leaders.

Mr. Follows said the association's goal of $1 billion should be reached this year despite a dampening effect of tight money on all real estate activity.

Pro Football Issue Dropped But Not Dead

By HAL MALONE

A minority group of Vancouver Island Football Association directors Thursday night handled the question of minor pro football for Victoria like a hot potato . . . they dropped it.

But the game isn't over.

This apparent contradiction occurred when two directors said they planned to meet again with Vancouver businessman Robert Yanner concerning a Victoria entry in the Pacific Footbal League.

The Association directors declined to act on a recommendation by a three-man committee that they join with Yanner to bring football here. Nine of the 20-man board met at the Dominion Hotel.

Later committeemen Bert Nelson and Pat Frumento said they would try to arrange a meeting with Yanner as soon as possible "to see if there are any other means by which Victoria could have a team."

The recommendation, submitted by Frumento, had Yanner putting up $5,000 cash and the association selling 1,000 season tickets at $10 each.

SPLIT IN PROFITS

This would yield $15,000, meeting the projected operating budget. From game sales, programs and other avenues any profits would be split 50-50 between Yanner and the Association. the latter would channel the monies into the minor football program on Vancouver Island.

Nelson and Frumento supported the deal with Yanner. Together they maintained they could easily dispose of 300 season tickets.

Nelson said the committee was "only interested in seeing that as much profit as possible would go into minor football."

TOO MUCH RUSH

Said Frumento: "You would be getting 50 per cent of the profits for nothing."

Other directors dissented, albeit agreeing they would like to see pro football in the city.

Association president Lyle Wicks claimed the group didn't have the "means or capabilities" to guarantee $10,000, noted that Yanner had not put in writing Association demands.

Tillman Briggs, the third member of the fact-finding committee said, "we'd have to rush too many things."

"If pro football was successful it would help minor football. But I think it's a year too soon." He said he would abstain if the question was put to a vote.

Dennis Veitch, B.C. Lions' coordinator of minor football said he advised Yanner "to get out" unless Victorians had a vested interest.

LOAN OF EQUIPMENT

Veich termed the 50-50 proposal "a feasible situation."

"If you could sell 1,000 season tickets, it could be profitable."

Veitch said the Lions would loan the team protective equipment.

"We would assist with no strings attached. We wouldn't want to be involved."

Sensing the tide of opinion, Nelson moved that the Association have nothing to do with minor pro football in Victoria on the suggested 50-50 basis. No vote was taken.

The potato was too hot to handle.

Cloninger Wields Big Bat, Marichal Wins 12th Game

By Associated Press

Tony Cloninger, Atlanta Braves $100,000 bonus baby eight years ago and a 24-game winner last season, turned slugger Thursday night, driving in five runs with the second and third homers of his major league career as the Braves stomped New York Mets 17-1.

The Braves' 17 runs and 22 hits were the highest single-game totals in the majors this year.

The 25-year-old right-hander, who was struggling along with a 5-7 pitching record before his date with the Mets, stopped them on five hits while stroking a single in addition to three-run and two-run homers.

Elsewhere, San Francisco's Juan Marichal became the majors' first 12-game winner in the first-place Giants' 2-1 victory over Houston Astros, Chicago Cubs upended Don Drysdale and Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3; Philadelphia Phillies slugged Cincinnati Reds 12-5 with a 19-hit attack and Pittsburgh Pirates edged St. Louis Cardinals 2-1.

Marichal pitched a four-hitter, boosting his record to 12-2, and drove in the deciding run as the Giants won their fifth in a row. After Tom Haller homered for the Giants in the second, singles by Ollie Brown and Hal Lanier put runners on first and third. Marichal then tapped to third baseman Bob Aspromonte and Brown beat the throw to the plate.

ONE-HIT VICTORY

The Cubs beat Drysdale for the third time this season and sent the Dodger right-hander down to his fourth straight defeat. Relief pitcher Cal Koonce blanked the Dodgers from the fourth through the ninth, when he needed last-out help from Billy Hoeft.

In the American League, Washington's Pete Richert dished out a one-hitter as the Senators chilled front-running Baltimore Orioles 2-1. Brooks Robinson's leadoff single in the second was the only hit off Richert.

In other games, Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader from Kansas City Athletics 6-4 and 5-2, Detroit smashed Boston Red Sox 16-4, New York Yankees edged Cleveland Indians 7-6 and California Angels beat Minnesota Twins 7-2.

HAPPINESS IS A 67

Three-Under 67 Helps Al to Build Confidence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Al Mengert, a club pro from Tacoma, Wash., who grabbed the first-round lead in the U.S. Open golf tournament, says mental condition is all-important for the dark horses.

"A fellow like me, a club pro, has to lick a mental block," Mengert said after carving out a three-under-par 67 Thursday.

"A club pro only plays about three times a week. The guys on the tour play all the time and you may figure that gives them an advantage. So you have to get geared up mentally. You have to build your confidence."

His 67 gave him a one-stroke lead over Gene Littler and Don Massengale, and a two-stroke margin over Billy Casper. He toured the 6,719 yards of the par-70 Olympic Country Club course without once going over par. He had three birds.

He has played in nine Masters and is in his seventh Open. This, of course, is his best showing.

"It's probably the best round of competitive golf I've had since I won the Metropolitan Open in New Jersey in 1960," he said.

RAN HOT

He reeled off six threes in a stretch of eight holes, starting with the par-three eighth. He dropped in a 30-foot birdie putt on nine, had only a three-foot putt for a birdie on 10 and ran in a 15-footer for his third birdie on 12.

Littler, the 1961 Open champion, and Massengale managed to take two strokes off par and Billy Casper was one under.

Grouped at par 70 are Phil Rodgers, Doug Sanders, San Francisco amateur John Miller and Australian Kel Nagle, who lost the 1965 Open title to Gary Player in a playoff.

At 71 were PGA champ Dave Marr, Masters champ Jack Nicklaus, Tony Lema, Arnold Palmer, Bob Goalby, Tom Nieporte and Wes Ellis Jr. Four-time champion Ben Hogan, who received a special invitation to the tournament, was one of 10 at 72.

Player came in with a 78 after missing seven putts of four feet or less, including one of 15 inches.

Rocks Settle for Draw After Last-Minute Slip

Parnell's Goal Keeps Irish From Second Straight Win

NEW WESTMINSTER — Victoria's improved Shamrocks escaped without a defeat here Thursday night but were deprived of their second straight Inter-City Lacrosse League triumph by a last-minute defensive mistake.

Shamrocks, who had stepped up their running and passing attack to beat New Westminster Salmonbellies 13-9 in Victoria the previous night, appeared headed for another triumph over the 'Bellies when they packed an 8-7 lead in the final minute at Queen's Park Arena.

Then overeagerness may have cost them the victory.

Pressing for a goal that would have clinched the decision, the Irish apparently forgot about the importance of protecting the slim lead.

Westminster scoring ace Paul Parnell suddenly broke into the clear and cruised in unmolested to fire the equalizing goal behind goalie Barry Forbes.

No overtime was played in order to allow the Shamrocks to make plane connections for their trip home.

Shamrocks, playing without the services of Bob Coutts and Lonnie Restall, both unable to get time away from work, and team scoring leader Ranjit Dillon, sidelined by a dislocated toe, forged into a 6-2 lead at half time.

FORBES SHARP

They outscored Salmonbellies 3-2 in the opening quarter and got the only three goals of the second period as stubborn checking and alert work by Forbes blanked the Westminster snipers.

Defensive troubles started in the third quarter and the Rocks had their margin shaved to a 7-6 by the time the final period started, but still seemed likely winners until Parnell got his third goal of the game with only 24 seconds remaining.

Workers Rebound To Pound Greaves

Transport Workers, after a brief lapse Wednesday night against pace-setting Greaves, jumped back onto the winning track Thursday. Workers turned the tables on Greaves and walked off with an impressive 12-4 victory against the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League's leaders.

Transports now lead Greaves by one-half game in the won-and-lost column, although Greaves retain a slight edge on a percentage basis.

Workers had won seven straight games and tied one before dropping the Wednesday contest by an 8-4 margin.

Transports didn't take any chances Thursday. They struck quickly in the second inning, pouncing on lefthander George Hemming for six runs. Playing-manager Barry Harvey stroked the big blow in the inning, driving in three runs with his fourth home run of the season.

Jim Heighton and John McKeachie drove in two runs in the inning with a single and double respectively.

VANCOUVER AIDS . . . . . . ARENA FUND

Faded Hopes Polished

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's faded hopes of obtaining a National hockey League franchise took a turn for the better Thursday when city council authorized a $750,000 grant toward construction of a $6,000,000 trade centre-sports arena.

The grant left the Pacific National Exhibition just $250,000 short of the total cost of the project. The city had previously pledged $1,000,000 and the provincial and federal governments have promised $4,000,000 for the NHL-calibre arena.

Council voted 8-3 to authorize the additional grant after three hours of stormy debate, but attached a major condition to it.

The PNE has to guarantee to repay $500,000 out of its long-term profits if the offer is accepted. There were also reports the grant won't meet conditions set down by Premier Bennett for the provincial funds.

The grant renewed hopes that Vancouver may get an NHL franchise in time for the 1967-68 hockey season, should one of the six U.S. cities drop out of the league expansion plan.

Laycoe Bids For Harvey

MONTREAL (CP)—Plans for selecting players for the annual all-star game were reversed and monetary awards granted the league's first-place finishers were increased as the National Hockey League's annual meeting wound up Thursday.

Earlier in the week, the NHL decided that the 20th annual all-star contest would be played Wednesday, Jan. 18 instead of the usual week prior to the opening of season play.

The plan concerning the new all-star date had called for the all-stars, chosen for their play in the first half of the season, to meet Montreal Canadiens, current Stanley Cup champions.

However, it was decided Thursday that insufficient time between first-half voting and the game date would not allow this. Therefore, the all-stars chosen for last season would face the Canadiens.

MORE SHARES

The meeting also approved an extension in the number of monetary units granted the first-place finishers. In the past, 18 units of $2,250 have gone to the club winning the Prince of Wales Trophy, but this now has been extended to cover 21 shares of the same amount.

The meeting approved a proposal to be submitted to the National Broadcasting Company for United States television coverage of 14 late-season games and three to five playoff contests.

The meeting also agreed to refer to the general-manager level each point proposed by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in an effort to alter the current pro-amateur agreement. The CAHA has served notice it will terminate its working agreement with the NHL next June, but both sides now appeared ready to return to the bargaining table.

GADSBY MAY RETURN

It was also agreed to review progress made by the six U.S. cities involved in the expansion after Sept. 15. The six cities are Los Angeles, San Francisco-Oakland, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Sid Abel, general - manager and coach of Detroit Red Wings, said Thursday he expects defenceman Bill Gadsby to return next year as a player. Gadsby said after the Stanley Cup playoffs that he would be retiring from hockey.

Hal Laycoe, general-manager of Portland Buckaroos of the Western League, said Thursday he has offered defenceman Doug Harvey an opportunity to play for Portland next year. Harvey, a former NHL all-star defenceman, is a free agent. He played with Baltimore Clippers of the American League last season.

Other accomplishments during the four-day annual convention included the selection of 10 persons to hockey's hall of fame, new rules to curb fighting and the intra-league draft.

The 10 persons elected to the hall of fame included Campbell, goaltender Frank Brimsek, defencemen Babe Pratt, Kenny Reardon and Butch Bouchard, along with forwards Ted Kennedy, Max Bentley, Elmer Lach, Toe Blake and Ted Lindsay.

National Golf Week was, from a standpoint of entries, the most successful ever in Victoria. A total of 418 golfers challenged Canadian champions Wilf Homenuik and Jocelyne Bourassa at five Victoria-area courses.

Uplands led the way with 143 entries. Gorge Vale had 91, Cedar Hill 64 and Oak Bay and Colwood each had 60 contributing to junior golf development by trying to beat the champs.

It would appear that the B.C. Golf Association's new format for its provincial amateur tournament has met with favor of the better players as well as the executives.

The qualifying format was changed two years ago at Kelowna. Instead of 36 holes of qualifying play and 16 qualifiers, the BCGA inaugurated the 72-hole qualifying system. Only eight qualify for match play now.

A BCGA executive as well as a top-notch player, Capilano's Doug Bajus endorses the new system from "both sides of the fence."

"It gives us a better championship," Bajus said earlier this week. "It also gives the players more rounds of golf and the tough qualifying test really puts the gun to the heads of players hoping to win a spot on the Willingdon Cup team.

"As far as I can see, most of the better players seem to like it."

The match-play finish on the last three days of the week-long tournament still gives the fans the glamorous head-to-head windup.

The response to the caddy-training clinic held at four city clubs last week was excellent. Just over 200 boys turned out for the sessions at Cedar Hill, Uplands, Royal Colwood and Gorge Vale.

Second of the clinics, sponsored by the National Association of Lefthanded Golfers, is scheduled this evening. Same clubs, same time.

Need for good caddies will be greatest when the Pacific Northwest Amateur is played at Colwood July 4-9, followed by the lefthanders' National Amateur July 17-22.

'Scuse me if I sound like a huckster.

Victoria's great "golfing fortnight" is still more than a year away, but this is the time the public-at-large must start thinking about it.

Rest assured the 1967 events—the Commonwealth matches, the Willingdon Cup and Canadian Amateur tournaments—are going to be a success. But with the help of seemingly inconsequential manoeuvres, the fortnight can be an overwhelming success.

Consider, for example, summer house guests. Some of those on hand now might like to return in 1967, and now is the time to suggest the dates of Aug. 8-15. If the guests are golf-minded, Bill McColl won't have any trouble selling his tickets.

Also offered as food for thought: tickets at Christmas. As announced recently, a bargain rate of $10 prevails until the end of the year. The ticket covers all events during the fortnight.

The price appears to be in an ideal cost range, suitable for friends and business acquaintances.

McColl's ticket-selling committee is purposely delaying an all-out campaign until October. This is so there is no conflict with the Canadian Open, scheduled to be played in Vancouver starting Sept. 29.

While McColl is prepared to wait, this doesn't have to be the case with the rest of us.

Besides, those visitors don't stay with us all summer . . . or do they?

RAIN CUTS PLAY

West Indies Sharp

LONDON (Reuters) — The West Indies cricket team, already one up in the series, batted brightly in adverse conditions to reach 155 for 4 wickets Thursday, the first day of the second test against England.

Heavy rain cut 3¼ hours out of the day's play at Lord's.

The West Indians lost opener Joey Carew with only 8 on the board. But Rohan Kanhai, joining the other opener, Conrad Hunte, rattled up 25 in 30 minutes before being second out at 42.

After an hour's play rain sent the players scurrying to the pavilion. After tea, the West Indies soon lost a third wicket when the patient Hunte, with 18 runs, was bowled by Ken Higgs. But Seymour Nurse (40 not out) and Basil Butcher (49) put on 66 in an hour for the fourth wicket.

England might have been better placed if Titmus in the slips had managed to hold a difficult chance off the first ball received by the West Indian captain, Gary Sobers. Sobers survived and was soon batting with flowing ease to help Nurse take the total to 155 without further loss before the close.

Scores of other matches being played Thursday:

Hampshire 151 for 8 and secondly 75 for 4; Yorkshire 104. (Rain curtailed play).

Essex 157 for 8 and 92 for 6; Kent 183 for 7.

Wizard Wayne Didn't Give Russell a Chance

VANCOUVER — Just call Vollmer "Wayne the Whiz."

Why the smile?

Well, would you believe Russell was six under par for 15 holes played yet lost out to Vollmer by a 3 and 2 score?

Better believe it, because that's how it happened as the 21-year-old Vollmer led the way into today's 36-hole semifinals at Capilano Golf Club.

Also moving into today's semifinals were Victoria City champion Art Donaldson, Gordon MacKenzie of Point Grey and Marine Drive's Jonny Johnston.

MacKenzie took care of Capilano's Doug Bajus, 4 and 3, while Johnston sidelined Don Gardiner, 3 and 2.

Donaldson, who squeezed into the last qualifying spot by winning a playoff from Bert Ticehurst Wednesday, played his best golf of the week in defeating Robb. Big Art was three under for the 15 holes played.

"Now that I'm getting to know this course," said Donaldson, "I feel better."

TEN UNDER!

But Thursday nobody felt better than Vollmer, who was 10 under par when the match ended on 15.

"Man, I just didn't have a chance out there," whistled Russell, who was beaten last year by Vollmer in the final.

Vollmer started out with two eagles and a birdie on the first three holes!

He dropped a nine-foot putt for an eagle on the first hole, a 453-yard par five job. On the next, he dropped a nine-iron shot into the cup for a two, and another eagle.

On the third hole, another par five, he took a four.

"Right then and there," declared Russell later, "I should have walked back to the clubhouse."

There Was Nothing But Praise From Visiting New Zealanders

But the 142 members of New Zealand National Rose Society, now visiting here, were too polite to make comparisons.

"We feel at home here," said Hec Taylor of Estham, one of the organizers of the tour. "The scenery is similar and so is the climate."

The party is believed to be the largest horticulturist group to invade North America at one time. The New Zealand Society has a membership of 6,000.

They plantto visit the Victoria Horticultural Society summer show at the Victoria Curling Rink today. They leave Saturday for Salt Lake City, Utah.

The members said they are learning a lot from Canada and the United States, especially with regards to roads and hygine.

"We are impressed by the high standards of hygiene in your restaurants," said Mr. Taylor. "We can't say the same for ours."

But when it came to gardening and farming, the New Zealanders felt they could hold their own.

Bob Argue, a fruit farmer, who lives 20 miles outside the seacoast city of Nelson said B.C. and N.Z. were much alike.

"But our pace is slower because our economy is based on farming," he said.

But like most of his countrymen he was surprised to learn that the development of B.C. started about the same time as New Zealand and that the great navigator, Capt. James Cook, a national hero, had mapped out a part of the coast of B.C. and Alaska.

But they were equally surprised to find out that many British Columbians didn't know the difference between a New Zealander and an Australian.

"We have our own identity," said one member, "just like you and the Americans."

Many members of the party said they had difficulty in understanding Americans in Washington and Oregon because of their accent.

$350 Fine Follows Highway Collision

Gai Yow Chung, 350 Island Highway, was fined $350 in central could Thursday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

The charge arose from an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway at Tillicum May 15 when the accused's car caused $1,100 damage ramming the rear of another auto.

14-MEMBER DELEGATION

Scots Seek New Markets

Members of a Scottish Chambers of Commerce trade delegation landing in Vancouver Thursday had no complaints about the drizzly weather.

"I thought it was a Scotch mist," said necktie maker Gordon D. Mackay on his arrival here.

"I thought it was Irish," remarked Sara Murphy, a director of a Belfast linen work firm with branches in Britain.

Miss Murphy, the only "outsider" in the mission, also found the local scenery acceptable. "It is breathtaking . . . a good experience," she said.

The two came to Victoria in company with Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rae, partners in a Shetland Islands silvercraft firm — a detachment from a 14-member mission visiting Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal and a few sidepoints.

Purpose of their visit is to find new markets for their goods, ranging from industrial valves to fur fabrics, tartans and specially refined oils.

They also were on the lookout for new ways to make their goods more acceptable in the Canadian market.

They were vitally interested in whether their goods are in a good competitive position with similar goods from abroad.

Mr. Mackay said European, Japanese and Chinese goods for sale here in some ways ape the British produced items, but the quality and authenticity can not be duplicated even though prices are far lower.

"But we find it hard to compete with items from the Iron Curtain countries and from Japan and China, said Miss Murphy.

Political Tone Of Injunctions Hit By Lawyer

KELOWNA (CP)—Vancouver lawyer John Laxton charged British Columbia judges with getting their "robes dirty with political dust" because they have been issuing injunctions without discretion.

Mr. Laxton made the charge at the B.C. Bar Association convention Thursday during a panel debate on the legal and economic case for and against the use of injunctions in labor disputes. He and John Stanton, also of Vancouver, represented the union viewpoint.

Two other Vancouver lawyers, John A. Bourne and Brian McLoughlin, expressed the managements point of view.

Mr. Laxton said judges do not use proper restraint in the issuance of injunctions.

They have been issued because of shouting and abusive language such as the word "scab. One was granted against a legal strike at the emplyers place of business because it might "incidentally encourage other unions to stop working for other employers.

"Judges, appointed as they are by Liberal and Conservative governments, should bend over backwards to prove their political attitudes do not affect their decisions, he said.

"The first step they can take is to start using injunctions with greater discretion.

Mr. McLouglin, in summing up the managements viewpoint, said to abolish injunctions would "mean a wrong could be committed and there would be no remedy to deal with the wrong.

He called for moderation on both sides as an answer to injunction abuse.

Pay Increases For 60,000 Urged on Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The Staff Side Conference which represents some 115,000 federal employees wants an immediate salary increase for some 60,000 workers in administrative and administrative-support positions.

The conference, in a statement released today, said it made its approach to the government in a brief Thursday seeking an across-the-board increase which, coupled with an interim increased granted last October, would total eight per cent.

151 Rebels Killed

LISBON (AP) — Portuguese armed forces in Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa, killed 151 rebels during the first two weeks in June, a communique said Thursday. Three Portuguese soldiers were killed.

ON-THE-SPOT ALCOHOL TEST SUPPORTED

KELOWNA (CP)—Lawyers in British Columbia agreed Thursday at the B.C. Bar Association convention with legislation permitting police to stop suspicious cars and ask the driver to take a "curbside" alcohol test.

The topic was an amendment to the Motor Vehicle Act which permits police to suspend a driver's licence for 24 hours if they suspect a driver of drinking.

Vancouver lawyer Nicholas Mussallem opposed the legislation, saying he was against any constable "with 18 months training in Regina or a crash course . . . in Vancouver" being given judiciary powers.

Mr. Mussallem advocated driver education rather than legislation.

Quebec 'Inner Cabinet' Set by Johnson

QUEBEC (CP)—Daniel Johnson became the 20th premier of Quebec Thursday as he was sworn in by Lieutenant-Governor Hugues Lapointe, the man whose position he has said he will abolish.

The 51-year-old Union Nationale leader has described the lieutenant-governor's position as a vestige of colonialism.

A massed crowd jammed the legislative council's red chamber, cheering intermittently in the humid heat, as Mr. Johnson swore to "serve Her Majesty in the executive council of Quebec."

A few hours later, having announced the 21 names of his cabinet members, he said he planned to form "an inner cabinet" which would hold meetings and make decisions behind doors closed to the rest of the cabinet, as regular cabinet meetings are closed to the public.

The inner cabinet would be made up of four former members of the pre-1960 cabinet of Maurice Duplessis.

The four men are Mr. Johnson, who takes the federal-provincial affairs and natural resources portfolios, Jean-Jacques Bertrand, minister of education and justice, Paul Dozois, finance and municipal affairs, and Maurice Bellemare, labor and industry and commerce minister.

Mr. Johnson said that when the legislature next sits, Remi Paul (Maskinonge) will be elcted Speaker of the assembly.

He also named a new department, to be known as the department of equipment, which would eliminate "useless duplication" in the granting of construction contracts, engineering and in the placing of bids.

200 DOCTORS WATCH

Three Heart Valves Replaced in patient

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Albert Starr, demonstrating his pioneering technique to a medical convention, Thursday night replaced three valves in the heart of a woman patient with artificial ones.

"So far, there has been nothing to indicate any problem to mar the eventual outcome," said the 40-year-old surgeon later.

Starr reported on his "ball-in a cage" mechanism for substituting the heart's natural valves to a medical convention in Atlantic City, N.J., last October. He was asked by British surgeons to demonstrate the development.

Thursday night Starr virtually took apart the woman's heart. He cut out three of her four heart valves and replaced them with ball valves of his own invention. They are made of plastic, metal and rubber.

When it comes to buying tires there's safety in numbers. Performance rating numbers from Seiberling.

How much should you pay for your tires? What class of tire should you buy? Is a $12 tire a bargain? Is a $39 tire too expensive?

It depends.

On you and your car, and where and how you drive. On how much driving you do. On the kind of driving you do. On how fast you usually drive. On the ride you want from your car. On how long you expect your tires to last.

Tires differ in price and they differ in performance. They differ in price because they differ in performance. Some are built for one kind of driving, and some for another.

That's why one person can buy a so-called cheap tire and get a bargain—the tire performs well for him. It's also why another person can buy the same tire and get trouble—the tire lets him down.

Your aim in buying a tire is to buy the right tire. The right price is what you are satisfied to pay to get the right tire. Right tires come in all price ranges. The important thing is to know the tire that's right for your car and the way you drive it.

That's why Seiberling, alone among all tire manufacturers, developed Performance Rating. That's why every Seiberling tire has a Performance Rating number. That's why Seiberling dealers use Performance Rating Charts—to give you tire information you can immediately relate to your car and the way you drive it.

When you've taken a moment to think about your car and the way you drive it, you've taken the first step towards buying the right tire. The second step is to look up a Seiberling dealer. And a Seiberling Performance Rating Chart.

It's the best way to find out what people really think about a whisky: how do they like it when they don't know which brand they're drinking?

If you've tried Bonded Stock yourself, the playback won't surprise you. Bonded Stock is a great Canadian whisky. You can conceal the label but you can't disguise the flavour. It's an extremely mellow whisky with a deceptively smooth flavour that dyed-in-the-wool whisky drinkers love.

So if you know someone who buys whisky by labels, introduce him to flavour.

Bonded Stock flavour.

PEPITO . . . a happy fella

BIG TOP HERE NEXT WEEKEND

Shrine Circus to Rock Arena

Take 20 tons of pachyderm, a pride of lions, a tiger burning brightly, perhaps a gaggle of geese and a bevy of beauties.

Sprinkle in a few happy clowns and it adds up to the annual Rudy Brothers Shrine Circus in the Memorial Artna next Friday and Saturday.

Tickets are now on sale at Memorial Arena for performances Friday at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. and Saturday at 10:30 a.m. 3 p.m. and 8 p.m.

The five-ton elephantine ladies have been known to rock seismographs during some of the more active moments of their act.

Among the featured clowns will be Box Car De Young and his Funny Ford — a takeoff on the mechanical troubles of an old car.

TAX RAISES CASH

The British governmen expects to collect about £315,000,000 by its new payroll tax.

MOVIE REVIEW • •

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

INSIDE DAISY CLOVER
Capitol Theatre

I object to the philosophy that the world is a kind of garbage dump and most of the people in it so many flies.

That is the theme of many movies nowadays — particularly those of the so-called "art" variety — and this rather sordid film seems to go along with it.

Daisy Clover is nonetheless a tightly-directed, well-paced narrative which holds attention most of the time, and it is shot through with rays of hope that life may not be quite so murky as many of our modern writers see it.

Natalie Wood (remembered for her fine performance in West Side Story) is a 16-year-old hellion who chain-smokes, indulges in all kinds of hanky-panky with a teenage boy friend and has ambitions of going somewhere with her singing voice.

★ ★ ★

She sends a record of it to Hollywood producer Christopher Plummer (Capt. Von Trapp in the record-breaking Sound of Music) and he sends a chauffeured limousine to fetch her for a screen test.

Recognizing her possibilities, Capt. Christopher Plummer begins the big Hollywood build-up — carefully-staged interviews with the press, careful grooming by deportment specialists and tuition by professors of elocution.

The girl's mother is obviously too vulgar to be part of her movie background, so she is conveniently whisked away to an expensive establishment known as a convalarium.

With mother out of the way, Natalie is soon moulded into a star. She is taught to trust her usurious discoverer (Christopher Plummmer), even though he stops at nothing to give the public phoney idols for which they pay good hard dollars.

Her shocks and disappointments are real enough to be felt by the audience. But her alternatives to embracing the moral wasteland of Hollywood are unreal and unconvincing.

She retains her natural love of singing but discovers that talent is a purely commercial commodity which Hollywood exploits by devious methods — particularly the image of a clean forthright young woman who succeeds by "private enterprise."

Natalie's portrait of a mixed-up teenager, suddenly elevated to stardom, is real and energetic. But I was not at all impressed by her final gesture of defiance in blowing up her magnificent seaside home.

There is more than a suggestion of the Professor Higgins and Eliza Doolittle relationship in this film; but I'm afraid it lacks the depth of My Fair Lady and the great Bernard Shaw creation, Pygmalion, which inspired it.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1966 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

We are going to plot a piece of fiction, length about 25,000 words, each of which has a potential value of 35 cents in the right market.

I'm not very good at arithmetic, but unless I have booted my multiplication, this works out to a total of $7,000, give or take. That's enough to retire a modest mortgage, buy a very nice car, or finance a trip to parts where mention of the word "centennial" elicites a scowl and a puzzled "Huh?"

The magazine to which we will offer our story is known in the trade as a woman's book. It is brought out for the modern young matron and is frequently read, in a sheepish sort of way, by her husband.

Materials required are several medium soft pencils or a couple of ballpoints, a package of yellow paper and a box of white. If you can think directly into a typewriter, so much the better. Otherwise, write in longhand and have your script typed later.

All that now lacks is a story idea, and some characters to flesh it out. This we will attend to in note form before starting to write.

★

It will cheer you to learn that we don't have to invent a story situation. All we need do is select one from the stockpile which has accumulated through the ages.

Suppose we dust off the durable old standby labelled. 'Woman who believes herself happily married is confronted by ghost from her past.'

Working from the general to the specific, let's substitute 'man' for ghost, then plan our shadow-play in terms of the cast.

Since fancy names lack conviction, I suggest we call our story-lady Ruth Logan. She is wedded to John, a junior executive for a large corporation who is all the time busy.

We will give Ruth and John two children: Paul, aged 10, who wears spectacles and lives for the day when his dad will take him rock-hunting; and pretty, rebellious Kim turned 18.

Now, spot this family in a San Francisco area community, and we're away.

The man from Ruth's past? Since the best way to start a story is in the middle, pulling the beginning in later, we can let him dangle while we acquaint ourselves with the Logans. They have a nice place with an apricot tree in the back yard.

Paul yearns for the rock-hunting trip dad has put off six times already. Ruth is bored with her role as corporation wife. John is bucking for branch manager, and daughter Kim is seeing too much of a Berkley spin-out with beard and guitar.

We are now ready to yank in the other man, whom we'll call Elliot Young. Make him a psychiatrist, which is a very in occupation. Unbeknownest to Ruth, her old flame sets up shop in Palo Verde (that may mean "Green Horse," so you'd better invent another town) and Ruth is referred to him by the Logans' wise, kind old family doctor.

Elliot and Ruth discover fire in the embers. Problem: should Ruth, or can she, stomp it out? Here's where we take the beginning of our story off the shelf and tell the customers how that fire got started.

We can spend a fair amount of space sketching the background of the blighted romance, but we mustn't overdo it, nor can we neglect our other characters. These will drift in and out of the main action with their own little problems as we proceed.

John gets clipped out of the top spot in the corporation branch. Paul goes rock-hunting alone and turns up missing. Kim is conned into nibbling an LSD-tinctured sugar cube, not by the bearded troubadour but the other fellow her folks kept pushing at her, and winds up locked in the bogey-haunted cellar of her id.

Father finds son, psychiatrist rescues daughter, wife comes to her senses, and we exit in good order.

First, though—and this is vital to your story—make 'em suffer!

MAD HATTER of the Boy Scouts is A. G. "Lofty" Coning. Here he prepares to put impractical Scout skimmer into orbit. (Bill Halkett Photo.)

Scouts Atten-Shun, Uncover —Now Altogether, Heave!

By GLEN ALLEN

Picture a mass rally of Greater Victoria Scouts at Clover Point.

Drawn up in close order formation they wait the command.

Having rid themselves of their hats, the Scouts should "march to Centennial Square to wash our knees in the fountain as a public act of renunciation of short pants."

Mr. Coning says much of the Boy Scout uniform is of Boer War vintage and changes are long overdue. He's been saying so for two weeks in a sustained vocal attack.

"The best of us will often be tempted to worship at the shrine of status quo."

Mr. Coning, a member of the B.C. and Yukon regional council, had earlier urged that "if Scouts want to wear long hair, and call their leaders 'Dad' let them make a good job of it."

Mr. Scrivener replied, "The point I still want to make is that boys make their own choice, patrol by patrol.

"Shorts or longs, round or flat, it's up to a boy what he wants to wear."

To silence an exchange that has so far generated more noise than the Crimean and Boer Wars lumped together the Times today asked a dozen Scouts what they wanted to wear.

Of the 12 asked, 11 opted for short pants over long.

Not all were anxious to make a choice. Some would like to have both shorts and longs, round hat and beret.

●

The regulations are for most purposes, mute on the subject.

Said Peter Grove, 13, of a Juan de Fuca district Scout troop, "Shorts are better because it's warm here. Longs get very hot and besides some people get tight longs and some get baggy ones.

Richard Hardisty, 14, said that if he had his choice he would choose blue jeans.

"But since I can't I'll take shorts," he said, adding that he wanted to keep his round hat for dress occasions and his beret for hiking and camping.

A young man who said he had been Scouting in Ottawa, Ian Sinclair, 16, of 6th Arbutus, said "longs are expensive and nobody ever seems to get any that look the same.

"They're better in the cold though."

A mother, whose Scout son was not available for questioning perhaps had the best formula of all.

"Longs for winter and shorts for summer," she said.

He also said he preferred his Stetson in wet weather, even though it got "all crumpled up."

"They make a boy look sissy," he said, "but I like the beret."

SCHOOL REPORT SECRET

Greater Victoria School Board will get the word tonight from the experts.

University of British Columbia Professors Lorne Downey and Walter Hartrick will unveil their report on school administration at a closed board meeting.

The board commissioned the pair to make a critical study of the school system in a move designed to streamline and update the administration.

The two men have worked on their report for the past six months. Its recommendations are expected to outline guidelines for future development of the system.

Exactly what they are will be made known to the board tonight but the public will have to wait a while to hear their views.

School Board Chairman John Porteous said the report will not be made public either tonight or Saturday when the board will hold another meeting to study the report.

$350 Penalty For Driver

Robert Scarabelli, 516 Dallas, was fined $350 when he pleaded guilty in central court today to impaired driving.

He was charged after his car was seen to skid out of control and speed on Quadra June 9.

NUCLEAR POWER WON'T REPLACE IT

'Hydro Power Here to Stay'

By JOHN MIKA

Atomic power will never displace hydro power but the two techniques some day may become equal partners in sharing the load factors of major electrical grids.

That's the conviction of Trade and Commerce Minister Ralph Loffmark after a trip to California including a study of power development schemes there.

"Atomic power is not as close as some people think and it means that our projects (Peace and Columbia River schemes) will not be undercut by atomic power," he said in an interview today.

NATURE, NOT COSTS

He said the reason is the nature of atomic power rather than a question of costs, although even the predicted decline in atomic power costs has not come as quickly as expected.

"Atomic power can't be stored," he said. "Once you activate the nuclear reaction, it keeps going steadily and you either use the generated power immediately or lose it.

"As a result, atomic power would be best used to carry the basic, constant load, but the problem there is they have not yet solved the possibilities of interruptibility inherent in atomic power.

"The only place you can store power, turning it on only when you want it, is in water behind a dam or in a battery.

ALWAYS NEEDED

"So hydro power always will be needed to take care of the heavy peak load demands for power."

Mr. Loffmark said when atomic can be made uninterruptible, it probably will become the standard method of servicing the basic loads in electrical grids while hydro power would be used to handle peak load demands.

He points to California's current hydro development program as proof. He said they are building two high-cost, low-yield dams that are only one quarter as economic as British Columbia's Peace River project.

"One of these is quite close to Los Angeles, where you would think that atomic power would be a natural. Yet, they are building the world's highest concrete dam — 634 feet — on the relatively small Yuba River at Buller Bar," Mr. Loffmark said.

The Buller Bar dam will cost $160 million to develop only 200,000 kilowatts of energy, compared with 2,270,000 kilowatts to be produced by a $400 million dam on the Peace River.

The cost per unit of electrical energy in the California project will be $800 — compared with $180 in the Peace River project.

"This is typical of the cost differentials for power between B.C. and most of the western U.S. and the differential is even higher in the east. It also parallels the experience of the Japanese who have high-cost, low-yield dams too," said Mr. Loffmark.

"The significance for us is the great length to which the Americans will go to capture what little hydro power they have available and that they are still prepared to do this notwithstanding the prospect of atomic power."

He believes this is conclusive proof that hydro power will never be replaced by atom-powered generators.

Campbell Hit For 'Impudence'

Put Up or Shut Up Says City Alderman

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

An irate city alderman this morning told Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to put up or shut up.

Ald. Michael Griffin, incensed by what he termed an insulting letter from the minister regarding council's approach to tenders, said "he should name names, cases and dates."

Mr. Campbell in a letter to all municipalities in B.C. said his department is receiving many complaints that low bids on municipal contracts are often being rejected.

"All councils should exert every effort that will assist in arresting this upward trend," the letter stated. "Aside from the ethics involved there is a question of added cost to the municipal taxpayer."

"We are quite aware of our responsibilities to the taxpayer," snapped Ald. Griffin in reply. "We don't need a minister of the crown lecturing us like a schoolteacher. We are well aware of the fact that in dealing with city funds we are in fact dealing with trust funds."

"Many of us on council are reasonably successful businessmen," he added. "Each and every day we have to make mature judgments in the awarding of contracts and other related matters.

"It is impudent to an insulting degree for someone at the minister's level to suggest that we are failing to exercise that same discretion in a responsible way when it comes to municipal contracts."

Ald. Griffin admitted that there may be occasions when council did not accept a low bid.

"But the only time we would award a contract to other than the lowest bidder would be after mature consideration and reasons," he said.

'NAME NAMES'

Ald. Griffin said if Mr. Campbell had any specific cases in mind where the city has deliberately accepted a high bid and wasted taxpayers' money he should say so.

"If he has any cases to which he can point a finger I suggest he name the cases, dates and the amounts involved. In fact it is his duty to do so.

"This letter is most irresponsible," he said. "Insulting and irresponsible in the extreme."

Painters Have Full Weekend

Many would-be window painters in Esquimalt won't have time for their art until Saturday, so the contest has been extended.

The windows in Esquimalt Shopping Plaza have been made available as a feature of Buccaneer Day. Entries are still coming in. Judging takes place Monday.

Smoke Screened In Closed Room

City council met behind closed doors this morning to discuss the city's smoke bylaw and the tangled intermunicipal library agreement.

Following the 2½-hour meeting Mayor A. W. Toone refused to comment on either topic.

"I can't comment on the smoke bylaw because we have a case before the courts and I have nothing for public release on the library agreement until I have talked to the reeves" of Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and Central Saanich.

Under the smoke bylaw Capital Iron and Metal has been charged with violating the law. The case will be in magistrate's court sometime next week.

On the library agreement it is known that outlying municipalities are unhappy with what has been termed "Victoria's parochial attitude."

The new agreement would see a more equitable sharing of costs. It was in its final draft phase when Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow insisted the city's membership on the library board be raised to five, while Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich held one membership each.

Ald. Edgelow said unless this was done the other municipalities would be "running our library."

The statement brought angry rebuttals from other municipalities.

In refusing to comment on the present stage of negotiations Mayor Toone said it was earlier press stories which had caused the present trouble. He did not deny their accuracy.

4TH OFFENCE MEANS JAIL FOR DRIVER

Raymond Healy, 3214 Newmarket, was sentenced to a month in jail today when he was convicted for the fourth time of driving without a licence.

The accused was involved in a minor road accident on Esquimalt Road June 2 and told police then his licence was in a jacket at home. He later admitted to not having one.

Healy was convicted on a similar charge last month and had two convictions for the same offence last year.

He was also fined $40 when convicted of careless driving.

Group Formed To Keep Peace

Saanich council and Greater Victoria school board will establish a liaison committee to ensure harmony in their future relations.

The decision was made after a meeting Thursday between Reeve Hugh Curtis and board vice-chairman Peter Bunn.

The two public bodies tangled over the planning of parking facilities at a new school in Saanich. Purpose of the liaison committee is to avoid similar disputes in future.

Butt Blamed in Fire In City Post Office

Handicapped Tests Tonight

Ten handicapped children will be tested for their first level Red Cross swimming test at HMCS Naden swimming pool tonight at 7:30.

The program is sponsored by the B.C. Society for Crippled Children, of which Rody Ryan is executive secretary.

Initially Baffled? —ICUR2

Representatives of the AMS, CUPM, MAA, NCTM and SIAM met this morning at the University of Victoria.

And strangely enough, the members of organizations making up this alphabet-soup are more interested in numerals than in letters.

They are mathematicians: to be precise, members of the American Mathematical Society, Committee for the Undergraduate Program in Mathematics, Mathematical Association of America, National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, and Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics.

Titles of the papers to be delivered at their meet sound as mystifying to laymen as the initials of their names.

They will engage in something of more general interest this evening. At 8:30 in the Students' Union Building the assembled mathematicians will have a beer party.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Tickle the Tastebuds With Off-Beat Dishes

By Penny Saver

Food shops with imported goods are fascinating places. In them, you are not only introduced to the different types of delicacies from countries all over the globe, you can also learn how to enjoy these yourself. Some foods sound wildly exotic just by name. Coupling this gourmet's delight with a complementary supplement is another problem. Some foods, if you will pardon the trite expression, are like a fish out of water if they are not served with a specific dish. I found one shop-owner who let me in on the secret of enjoying some of the most fabulous creations.

One food that caught my attention because it sounded so unusual was conger eel in jelly. Conger eel, I discovered, is a large, marine, completely scaleless eel. They grow as large as eight feet long, and are very important food fish.

This import from West Germany needs no preparation at all. Simply eat it as it is with fresh, crusty bread. It's ideal for gourmet snacks. This sells for 98 cents the six-and-one-half-ounce can.

If you like distinct, original flavor in imported foods, this shop is for you. Two foods prepared in Germany are shipped in bulk to many different countries. They come right from the producer to the store in huge, 351-fluid-ounce cans. These foods are pickles and sauerkraut, prepared the unmistakable German way. They are priced at 60 cents and 30 cents the pound respectively. Give your tastebuds a treat.

Another feature of this shop is that it has different types of salads prepared and ready for your table. Take a holiday from the kitchen one day and try these on your family, sided with cold cuts. One succulent meat salad contains ham and a delicious dressing. One pound sells for 89 cents. Try their potato salad, too, at 39 cents the pound.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. I've been on your nine-day diet for nine days now and have lost seven pounds. I am delighted. I had plenty to eat. I feel great. Now I would like to put my husband on your Tubby Hubby Diet. He has a large bay window. What exercise would benefit him most?

Lowman

A. Congratulations! The bay window will diminish because of counting calories but special exercise will surely speed the process and produce better results. Ask him to do this one regularly. Lie on his back, legs straight and arms resting on the floor. Raise the legs and trunk from the floor at the same time. Try to touch the fingers to the legs (or toes if he can reach that far). Return legs and trunk and arms to the floor. If he can't touch at first, practice will improve his performance.

Q. I am 12 and have a nice figure except that my cheeks and thighs and hips are too fat. I hardly eat anything for breakfast and I buy my lunch at school. I eat a regular dinner. I do snack between meals a little. Should I cut out all starchy foods and desserts? Or what? Please hurry. Bathing suit time will be here soon and I'm going to look like a slob.

A. In the first place, if you admit you snack some it is most likely that your snacks count up to more than you think. You must keep track of the calorie count of your snacks.

Then, too, you make a mistake to skip breakfast. You may injure your looks as well as your health. The most successful reducers do not miss a meal. Eat a well-balanced diet divided between three meals a day and then cut out the snacking unless it is fresh fruit or juice or some similar item.

Q. I am five feet one inch tall and weigh 105 pounds with a near-perfect figure. I would like to purchase a two-piece swim suit and since I am short and short-waisted I don't know whether this would suit me or not. It is not a bikini suit I am considering but a regular two-piece where the parts completely cover the navel and the top has a round neck with one-inch straps. I would not consider a bikini with all the stretch marks I have but I do like the less extreme ones. I have been told that when one is short-waisted it is not wise to call attention to this fact.

A. This is true. The longer the distance between the waist and the bust the lovelier the figure. Since you are short-waisted it is better to minimize that appearance. The division at midpoint of the body and the white strip of skin would tend to make you look shorter-waisted and broader. A one-piece form-fitting suit would be better.

If any of you missed my Nine Day Diet this spring and would like to lose from 5 to 10 pounds in nine days send 10 cents and stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the diet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Honeymoon Trip to Eastern Canada Follows Recent Marriage Vows in Service Chapel

Following their recent wedding in Christ the King Chapel, Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Armond Michael Picard left on a honeymoon trip up-Island and to Eastern Canada.

The bride, the former Marcia Rose Bates, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Bates, 4000 Martha Crescent. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Rene Picard, 1253 Simon Road. Fr. S. Murphy officiated at the ceremony and Mr. Bates gave his daughter in marriage.

Accents of Chantilly lace highlighted the empire-line gown worn by the bride. The bodice featured lily point sleeves and the A-line skirt was styled with a full train sweeping back from the waistline. Mother-of-pearl and lace formed the coronet which held her four-tier scallop-edged veil. She carried a crescent bouquet of pink rapture roses.

Empire-line gowns of hot pink peau de soie were worn by the bride's attendants. They were maid of honor Miss Lynn Picard, bridesmaid, Miss Karen Bennett, junior bridesmaid, Deborah Bates and flower girl, little Colleen Bates.

Headpieces were self-fabric pill boxes, edged with veils and the senior attendants carried bouquets of pink glamelias and gladioli. Colonial bouquets of similar flowers were carried by the junior bridesmaid and flower girl.

White candles and roses flanked the three-tier wedding cake which centred the lace-covered refreshment table at the reception following in the Uplands Golf Club. Cecil Bulman, Nanaimo, was master of ceremonies and Harvey Webber, Kimberley, B.C., proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Picard donned a three-piece suit of aquamarine blue, accented with a matching straw hat. She completed the outfit with accessories in camel tones and corsage of cream roses.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Dieters: World's Cruelest People?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I think dieters are the cruelest, most selfish people in the world. Dieting has become a national mania. If you wear a size 12, the diet nut tells you you should wear a size 10. How crazy can people get?

I gave a coffee party recently and stayed up past midnight the night before, baking date-nut bread and four kinds of cookies. Of the 20 women who came, nine took only token servings, and six refused even to sample my baking! One had the nerve to announce to everyone that she belonged to some crazy kind of diet club and was on an 18-day diet with a pack of other women. I didn't sleep a wink that night. I was even too sick to cry over the way my baking had been scorned. I will never entertain again as long as I live. Do you blame me?

THRU ENTERTAINING

DEAR THRU: I appreciate your disappointment, but look at the other side. Those who are fighting the battle of the bulge should not be made to feel guilty if they count calories. A gracious hostess appears to take no notice of how much or how little her guests eat.

The purpose of entertaining is not show off one's baking, but to show one's guest a good time. So entertain again, for the sheer joy of fellowship. And have diet wafers, and a no-cal beverage available for the dieters. They will love you for it.

DEAR ABBY: This boy and I are pretty good friends but we have never dated. He is 20, and I am 17. He is quite handsome and by no means shy, but he hasn't dated much. I'm quite a bit overweight, but have been told that I have a pretty face and a good personality.

The other night we were sitting on my front porch and he asked me to get him a date with a good-looking girl. He said he could take a girl to the movies, hold her hand, and talk sweet to her as well as any other boy.

Now, here's what I want to ask you. If I were to tell him that I could be taken to the movies, my hand could be held, and I would enjoy sweet talk more than some good-looking girl who hears it every Friday night, would he get the wrong idea?

LIKES HIM

DEAR ABBY: Does a man who is a citizen of a foreign country but is residing in the United States need to register for the draft? If so, how long after he gets here must he do so?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Yes. And he must register for the draft within six months of his arrival in the United States.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUSPICIOUS" IN GREENWICH: Beware of Greeks bearing gifts. And also Americans, French, Italians, Germans, Hungarians, Dutch, and Scandinavians.

WELFARE BRANCH LOOKING AT ORPHANAGE CRITICISMS

"Our superintendent of child welfare, Donald Bingham, has the matter in hand and we are studying it," said deputy social welfare minister Ray Rickinson Thursday.

He added that Mr. Bingham has been looking into the situation for a week and has submitted an interim report.

But Mr. Bingham emphasized that he was not prepared to make any comments at this stage.

"We are just studying it," he said, correcting himself after using the word "investigating."

DURING ANNUAL INSPECTION

Wrenettes Display Finest Navy Style

The waistlines were trim, the hair-dos immaculate and the seams of their black nylon stockings were straight as a die when members of the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps turned out Wednesday evening for their annual inspection.

But any illusion that the Wrenettes put appearance before performance disappeared as the evening's program got under way. In a joint inspection with the Admiral Rayner Navy League Cadet Corps, the teen-age Wrenettes marched with a co-ordination and crispness that a regimental sergeant-major would give his "handlebars" for.

Taking the salute on the dais at the march-past was the inspecting officer, Cmdr. K. L. Leeming, RCN (Rtd.). Also in the inspecting party were Navy League officials, Denis W. Brown, national vice-president; Mrs. George Dufour, national Wrenette chairman after whom the corps is named, and W. G. S. George, local president.

DISPLAYS

Following the march-past, both corps strutted their paces. In displays showing the year's work, they pulled cutters, fired rifles on the range, and carried out classes in gunnery, communications, seamanship, pilotage and navigation.

Proving that their eye on the rifle range is just as accurate as that of their male counterparts, several Wrenettes received marksmanship awards at the final ceremony of the evening. These were won in the recently held Barrie small-bore shooting competition in which the corps placed first in the province. Top marksmen were PO Heather Fairbairn, LW Wendy Anderson, AW Jamney Allen, AW Nancy Mason, Acting LW Arlene Dorland and OW Teresa Boughton.

TOP SCORE

AW Esther Siminson received the proficiency award of a desk set. This was presented by Mrs. Norman Chattell, president of the women's auxiliary. Runners-up were OW Helen Stewart and OW Lorranie Vesey.

The award for the Wrenette showing the most improvement went to AW Cheryle Phillips.

The Navy League Cup for most proficient leading cadet was won by LC Richard Stordeur while the Patricia Dufour Cup for most efficient able cadet went to AC Derek Brand. Runner-up was AC Arthur Hall.

Local Girl Anglican Novice

Miss Helen Dewar, formerly of Victoria, has been admitted as a novice at the convent of the Community of Sisters of the Church at Oakville, Ont.

She will now be know as Novice Jane.

"Both she and the community now believe she has a true vocation to serve God in this way," a Cathedral spokesman said.

As a novice of the order, Miss Dewar will wear the traditional dress of a nun. She will take further temporary vows, but her final vows may not be taken for two or three years to come.

"The novice is given plenty of time and opportunity to decide if she has found her true vocation," the spokesman said.

Very Rev. Brian Whitlow, Dean of Christ Church Cathedral, preached at a special service in the convent chapel at Oakville Thursday when Miss Dewar was admitted as a novice of the order.

TWO MINESWEEPERS SOLD TO FIRM IN VANCOUVER

Two naval minesweepers, the Fortune and the James Bay, have been sold to a Vancouver company.

The 152-foot sister ships, which have been in hot reserve at Esquimalt for the past two years, were sold to Offshore Marine Services Ltd., by Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

The minesweepers are similar in character to British offshore survey ships now under design

But Shell Canada Ltd., the company which has been most active in offshore oil research off the west coast, today denied they were connected with the purchases.

And there was no telephone listing for Offshore Marine Services which is registered on the sixth floor of a West Hasting Street, Vancouver, office block.

Crown Assets said the sale had been handled through Ottawa and could give no clue as to the actual buyers.

Rare Court Action Condemns 'Behavior'

A Salt Spring Island man who sat drinking in a neighbor's house while the neighbor's wife hid in the bathroom has been placed under a good behavior bond for the next 12 months.

George Barnes of Churchill Road, Ganges, was ordered by Magistrate Ostler in central court Thursday to post a $500 bond that he will keep the peace and be of good behavior, particularly in any relationship with Mrs. Judith Mollison, Rainbow Road, Ganges.

In a rare form of court action, Mrs. Mollison sought protection under a section of the Criminal Code available to persons who fear personal injury from another.

ENTERED HOME

In an earlier hearing June 3, Mrs. Mollison complained that on April 19 Barnes entered her house about breakfast time when she was alone with her children and not completely dressed.

She claimed he pushed open the bathroom door and she had to slam it in his face.

Barnes admitted having a drink of wine while waiting to see the complainant but claimed he had been invited into the house.

This incident and others of a similar nature made her fear for her safety and undermined her health, Mrs. Mollison testified.

Asked what he did for a living, Barnes said he was helping a contractor build his home. He came to the Mollison home to discuss a business deal involving gravel with Mr. Mollison and was waiting until Mrs. Mollison was free to tell him where he could find her husband.

"He stayed on in the house without any justification or the slightest excuse," said the magistrate in finding the complaint proved.

Volunteers Lose Suppers To Fight Fire

Chief Al LeQuesne and the Langford fire department got up from their suppers Wednesday to battle a grass fire on Glen Lake Road.

"It was set by kids. We know that for sure," said the chief, who added that his men have fought grass fires at that location for years.

"I think the kids set them on purpose, just to see the fire trucks roll up."

Sukarno Invites Pope

ROME (Reuters)—Indonesian Agriculture Minister Frans Seda, acting on behalf of President Sukarno, has invited Pope Paul to visit Indonesia, the Indonesian Embassy has announced.

ARCANUMS MEETING HERE

Grand Regent Matthew Yole of the Victoria Majestic Council will preside at the sessions until the election and installation of officers Saturday morning. The Royal Arcanum was founded in 1877 in Boston and now has a membership of 33,000 in Canada and the United States. There are 120 in the Victoria council, headed by Regent Kenneth Hancock.

MINISTER RETURNS FROM EUROPEAN TOUR

Expansion of Welfare Programs Proposed

Social Welfare Secretary Wesley Black Thursday said he will recommend an expansion of three existing programs involving children as a result of his recent month-long tour in Europe.

Mr. Black and his deputy minister, Ray Rickinson, visited Britain, Austria, Denmark and Sweden. They were accompanied by their wives.

"To make a long story short, we've come back and have informed the government that we think the goals we have set for ourselves are correct, Mr. Black told a press conference.

"While at times we may be criticized for not going fast enough, we feel our course is the correct one.
services."

Day-care centres would enable working mothers to leave their youngsters in well-supervised nurseries. The provincial government began experimenting with them recently, particularly as a method of enabling deserted mothers to earn their own living rather than being forced onto a welfare roll.

Group-living homes now care for 226 children in various B.C. communities, including Victoria, as a supplement to foster homes.

They involve placing eight to 10 youngsters, many of them with special psychological problems, in the same home run by a selected couple which usually is on salary.

Homemaker services would provide social and health services on a home-visit basis to the elderly, convalescent cases and handicapped so that they could live outside of institutions.

Mr. Rickinson said that after examining carefully three of the 36 Childrens Villages operating in Europe — small communities of children without parents to care for them — "we do not at this time intend to create any in B.C.

Mr. Black admitted he had also examined the medicare systems in the countries visited but was not willing to describe his impressions because he has not yet made a report to the cabinet.

CLERIC DIES

Half a Century Of Ministry Ends

Rev. Moi Fong Leung, minister of the Chinese Presbyterian Church here for 46 years, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at the age of 80.

"His was a quiet but very faithful ministry of more than half a century," Rev. Dr. David Chan, the present minister, said today.

Small of stature, Mr. Leung was actually the first Chinese to come to Canada as a Christian missionary. He came from Canton as a senior divinity student in 1912 and was ordained in Victoria in 1919.

On his retirement from the Chinese Presbyterian Church in 1958 he was honored in Cantonese and English at a farewell service in the church.

But he continued to take an active part in Chinese affairs, being a past president of the Chinese Hospital, a member of its board for many years, chairman of the Hoy Ping Association and an executive officer of the Chinese Benevolent Association.

Dr. David N. Smith, former director of the Presbyterian Chinese missions in Canada, was present when Mr. Leung was ordained here.

Recalling the occasion, Dr. Smith once said:

"Mr. Leung built well and worked faithfully in the church. His has been a faithful, patient ministry."

LEUNG
. . . he built well

Rev. A. M. Beaton, moderator of the Victoria Presbytery, Presbyterian Church in Canada, said Mr. Leung had a long and active life and would be sadly missed in the community life of Vctoria.

Mr. Leung lived at 1592 North Dairy Road and is survived by the widow at home; three sons, Solomon in New York, Paul in Vancouver and Peter in Victoria; six daughter, Lilyan, of Washington, D.C., Rebecca, Mary, Elizabeth and Lidya in Vancouver and Ruth in Victoria.

Rev. Dr. Chan will conduct funeral services in Chinese Presbyterian Church, 816 North Park, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. Burial will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park, with Sands Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

CO-ORDINATOR:

CD Needs New Look By Public

The public tends to confuse civil defence with war defence lamented provincial civil defence co-ordinator John Erb in a speech Thursday to Victoria Rotarians.

Contrary to pupular belief, civil defence is no longer concerned solely with enemy attacks and nuclear holocausts. "Our enemy is here and now," Mr. Erb said, "resulting from the natural terrain of the province."

The Alberni tidal wave was an example of the devastation a natural disaster can inflict on an unprepared community, he noted. Port Alberni had disbanded its civil defence organization, and Alberni had only a small group whose chief was in the hospital. As a result, civil defence efforts in the area were unco-ordinated and imposed much unneccessary hardship on the communities.

Describing civil defence as "a little-known form of disaster insurance," Mr. Erb enumerated some of the forms provincial civil defence takes: 200-bed emergency hospitals; 64 civil defence vehicles ranging from fire pumpers to emergency kitchens; 652 auxiliary firemen trained by CD fire inspectors; 75,000 men and women who have taken CD courses or attended demonstrations in the past five years; and even a special saw for cutting road accident victims out of their wrecked cars.

"It's time our corporate image began to imprope," Mr. Erb concluded.

9 IN MEMORIAM

—Mrs. L. C. Evans and Family.

PHILLIPS—In ever loving memory of a dear husband, Grandfather and Great Grandfather, William Acton Phillips, who passed away June 18, 1965.

You cannot say, you must not say
That he is dead. He is just away!
With a cheery smile,
And a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there;
So think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love Here,
Think of him still as the same, and say
He is not dead he is just away!
—James Whitcomb Riley.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

In ordinary bridge circles if one side is dealt almost all of the high cards it does all of the bidding. The opponents listen and hope for the best but fear and expect the worst.

Opening lead—♠2

In expert circles a player with bad cards will occasionally stick in a nuisance bid in an effort to disrupt his opponents and get them to the wrong contract.

Sometimes these nuisance bids work, other times they just break even, once in awhile they explode in the user's face.

Left to themselves North and South would undoubtedly have gotten to the same six spade contract they reached after West stuck in his monkey wrench three heart bid.

The difference is that if West had just kept quiet, South would almost surely have gone down one trick.

As it was South drew trumps with three leads and noted that West followed to all three. Then he cashed his three club tricks and saw that West produced exactly one card in that suit. This accounted for four of West's cards. It seemed certain that West would hold the king of hearts for his three heart bid. He had nothing else. How many hearts did he have? It seemed reasonable that he would hold seven of them. West's bid was bad enough with a seven-card suit and it would have been hopeless with a six-carder.

After these thoughts, South cashed his ace of hearts and played three rounds of diamonds. East had to win the third diamond and was forced to lead either a club or diamond. This gave South a chance to discard his queen of hearts; ruff in dummy and make his slam.

RIVIERA of VICTORIA

Certainly the view from the heights is as good or better than that of the Riviera: its sandy beaches are the best and warmest in Victoria; the area is sheltered from cold sea breezes by Mt. Check for yourself or better still, call me. Prices up to $36,500. You'll never regret moving "in" to Cordova.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

I've a great deal of respect for anyone who works, really works, to produce a good radio show. This is one reason I'm an unabashed admirer of Max Ferguson.

Stephen

He works hard to create an illusion which finds its reward in stirring the imagination and funny-bone of the listener.

While local dee-jays are spinning records and boringly repeating the temperature between 8:35 a.m. to 9:00 a.m., Ferguson is entertaining the masses from coast to coast on CBC radio with humor dredged from the columns of the daily newspaper, fresh humor from fresh stories.

From there, it followed him through story selection to discussion of program with his crew, to final production on tape, complete with audio skits.

On tape, obviously, because he uses no script to speak of, and it thus becomes a backstop in case of error or change.

The half-hour television offering didn't pick one of Ferguson's better days. Sometimes his punch line fails dismally. Fortunately there are more good satirical skits than there are bad. The ones on the program cannot be listed as his best.

Another good thing about his selection of stories is that they are not all centred on eastern Canada. Former Victoria Mayor Dick Wilson, Highways Minister Gaglardi and Premier Bennett have been the focal point of his satirical thrusts.

The quality of the television production was not the important element of the half-hour. It was the subject who netted the strong attention.

The glimpse of Max Ferguson at work will have satisfied his fans from one end of the country to the other. He is brilliant and deserves all accolades thrown his way.

GOOD THINGS COME IN SMALL COTTAGES

Here is one of the quaintest combinations of garden, home, and complete seclusion we have seen. The construction is only eight years old. A paved drive winds up to the house that is completely hidden from the road. Paths wind through the garden with several screened patios and secluded areas. 152 WATERFRONT PROPERTIES can be yours this summer with your own hide-a-way on Vancouver Island's most beautiful lake . . . this choice lot is king size in area (1.8 acres), has over 100 feet of protected waterfront, beautifully treed with evergreens, dogwoods and maples, peaceful seclusion and yet excellent access from main highway. COWICHAN LAKE is fast becoming the choice recreation area of the Island. Secure your family's future relaxation by making it a point to secure a water-front property while there are still lots available. Another choice might be this "hidden acre" with 175 feet of the choicest fishing lakefront in the whole area, or possibly you prefer the river where I have two very choice listings. A fine 2-bedroom cottage on an acre of land with the finest of riverfront, or this 3-bedroom "special" just this side of the famous "Willow Run." At only $8,900, terms, of course. There is no obligation when you phone BOB TURNER at LAKE COWICHAN, 749-3404 or 749-3252. Make it a point this weekend to visit the ISLAND'S FINEST LAKE.

SEPARATE WORLD

SUICIDE TRY FAILS

New Violence By Extremist Buddhists

SAIGON (CP)—A Buddhist girl set herself on fire tonight in an unsuccessful suicide attempt as extremist elements kept up anti-government demonstrations despite a warning that the fate of the church was at stake.

Dao Thi Tuyet, 16, suffered severe burns in trying self-immolation in the Buddhist Institute compound about a half-hour after a tight government curfew emptied Saigon's streets of all but a few Buddhist demonstrators.

The burning followed the fifth straight day of scattered demonstrations by radical Buddhist elements. The pattern of emotional protests has included nine suicides by fire.

Reports from the northern city of Hue said government planes strafed a dissident Buddhist-led army unit, some 10 miles from the city.

These reports also said 150 dissident soldiers surrendered to elite South Vietnamese government units manning the key points of the former imperial capital.

WARNS FOLLOWERS

A warning that the Unified Buddhist Church was at breaking - point was delivered by Thich Tam Chau, the moderate head of the Buddhist Institute, from a secret hideaway after he abandoned the institute compound to more militant monks.

His statement, published by the pro-government press but ignored by Buddhist newspapers, was a stern rebuke for the disorders in Saigon and in the northern Buddhist stronghold of Hue. He declared:

"I am against this current struggle. If your struggle fails, the Unified Buddhist Church will no longer exist. I hope you will understand this."

MOB CHANTED

A mob of 1,000 chanted anti-government slogans and listened to denunciations of the regime over loudspeakers inside the Buddhist Institute compound on the outskirts of Saigon. Riot police kept the area firmly bottled up.

Nearby Buddhists set fire to three American vehicles, including a U.S. embassy jeep. Others spilled debris in the streets and shouted insults at the police.

The Buddhists brought hundreds of children into the streets, apparently hopeful of baffling the riot forces and 100 monks offered themselves for arrest. Authorities chased most off.

The government seemed determined to keep the demonstrations in check. Whenever they threatened to get out of order, helmeted police and troops opened up with tear-gas grenades. They hauled off 10 of some 500 demonstrators who assembled on the Saigon waterfront.

Tam Chau, denying that he had abdicated his job, was particularly caustic over the use of Buddhist family altars as a protest gesture. He openly criticized his rival in Hue, Thich Tri Quang, for ordering — in Tam Chau's words — such a sacreligious exhibition.

CONTINUED STRIKE

The northern Buddhist chief meanwhile began the 10th day of a hunger strike in Hue, but there was no word on his condition. He had said he would take only liquids until the United States withdraws its support of the government and the ruling generals resign.

Suspended Sentence For Shoplifter

A Saanich man who earlier pleaded guilty to shoplifting two fishing reels from Woodward's June 3 was given a six-month suspended sentence in central court Thursday.

Robert Simpson, 226 West Obed, had already spent a week in jail awaiting sentence.

The accused had been accompanied by his 10-year-old boy at the time of the theft, it was revealed at his trial.

"To do this in the presence of a child of that age is most reprehensible," Magistrate Ostler told him today.

tween the three Columbia River dams, two of which will generate neither electricity nor profits, and the Peace River project itself.

"It makes no effort to suggest where the power ultimately will go or at what price or cost."

The editorial claimed that the Pacific Northwest will not be short of power in the 1970s yet B.C. Hydro expects to sell surplus Peace River power in the U.S.

It slammed the power authority as unbusinesslike because it runs transit bus systems at a loss and has reduced residential electricity rates "at the expense of profits."

Barron's acknowledged this would be popular "in some circles" and noted that the Northwest Public Power Association last spring gave B.C. Hydro an award for the greatest advancement in the shortest time.

"On both sides of the border, what former U.S. president Dwight Eisenhower labelled creeping socialism, lately has been making a great leap forward," Barron's concluded.

"Wall Street should be the last to underwrite its advance."

HAPPIEST BOY in Chicago today is eight-year-old Ricky Edwards as he holds a $100 bill he received as a reward for turning in $6,050 he found beneath a bench in Jackson Park. Ricky turned the money in to his teacher who notified police. A retired army officer, Naamon Baines, claimed the money and paid the reward. (AP Wirephoto.)

Centennial Project: Aid Other Countries

Amid all the self-adulation that naturally accompanies the celebration of Canadas hundredth anniversary, the work of one centennial committee stands out in sharp contrast.

The Centennial International Development Program would channel energy and money to aid underdeveloped countries.

Dr. H. L. Trueman, chairman of the Volunteer Agencies Committee, visited Victoria this week to organize support for the program.

Efforts will be made to increase the amount given by Canadians to such agencies as CARE and Unicef, he noted.

But the prime purpose of the international development program is to create a sizeable fund for special centennial projects in Asia, Africa, and Latin America. The World Bank and the UN have been asked to designate one project in each of these areas for the Canadian program to tackle.

Governments Called Into Court

Both the federal and provincial governments have been lasooed into court by a handful of resort owners angered by the log drive down the Stellako River, 80 miles west of Prince George.

Federal fisheries officials and the provincial attorney-general's department will be represented in Vancouver Courthouse Monday morning in response to an application for a writ of mandamus by the resort owners.

If issued, the writ would compel the federal fisheries department to take steps to prohibit and stop the log drive ordered by Forests Minister Ray Williston this week despite a warning from a federal official that it would not be allowed.

The federal position is that the logs will damage salmon-spawning beds. Mr. Williston says the river is so high the logs will pass over the gravel beds without touching them and, in any event, it is a river under provincial jurisdiction.

The resort owners claim that the log drive deters sports fishermen from coming to the area and could wipe out the salmon fishery.

Air Pollution Control Urged by Bar Group

KELOWNA (CP) — The B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association went on record here Thursday as unanimously favoring provincial legislation to control air pollution.

A record 550 delegates to the branch's annual meeting approved a resolution submitted by Duncan Shaw, chairman of the air law section, calling for provincial, rather than municipal, control measures.

"Present regulations passed, but not always enforced by cities and municipalities, do not really solve the problem of air pollution," Mr. Shaw said.

"As industry develops in the province we have more and more material blown into the air to create hazards to health and sometimes to air traffic.

"We believe only province-wide control will be effective."

The meeting, held jointly by the B.C. branch of the CBA and the Law Society of British Columbia, also reaffirmed its position on divorce reform, the right to sue the crown and ombudsmen.

DIVORCE LAWS

John T. Weir, QC, of Toronto, president of the CBA, told the meeting the national executive has pressed Ottawa for divorce reform on many occasions.

R. I. A. Smith of Vancouver, chairman of the civil justice section, said the resolution concerning the right to sue the crown is "a hardy annual."

But he said it "bears repeating time and time again."

W. O. Forbes, chairman, said the civil liberties section is "disappointed that no action has been taken "on its resolution calling for appointment of parliamentary or legislative ombudsmen." Mr. Weir said a national committee is looking into the matter.

Chamber Pushing Publicity Fund

So far this year it has contributed $361 and Sam Keeble, president, said Wednesday he hopes the chamber can reach its target of $550.

Mr. Keeble told members he intends asking city council to increase its $200 grant.

Cliff Pascoe, a director, said the chamber is preparing an industrial brochure of the district and deserves the financial encouragement of city hall.

Director Jim Hawthornthwaite, in charge of te brochure, said it should be ready by late fall.

Extremism In Wage War 'Dangerous'

There is need for more discipline in both labor and management, a minister of the Alberta Social Credit government said here Wednesday.

"Rising costs are a grave problem to Canadian industry," said Provincial Secretary Ambrose Holowach, visiting here from Edmonton.

"It is important that workers adopt a reasonable attitude in their demand for higher wages; otherwise we shall be threatened with inflation and unemployment.

"Employers, too, should be reasonable in their policies and endeavor to meet labor half way. Any kind of extremism today is dangerous."

Mr. Holowach has been provincial secretary in Alberta since 1962. He was first elected to the legislature in 1959 and re-elected in 1963.

During a recent visit to West Germany, the minister said he was impressed by the "good sense" prevailing in labor-management relations.

Field Trip Planned

'Decisive' Rail Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — The CNR's biggest union has voted 95 per cent in favor of strike action to back up current contract demands.

W. J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers Thursday announced the result of the secret mail ballot. A total of 22,200 ballots went to the union's 127 locals. Of these 20,323 were returned to the Ottawa headquarters by the deadline—18,512 for a strike, 969 against and 842 blank.

"This is by far the most decisive strike vote ever registered by our railway members," Mr. Smith said.

Kidnapped Baby Found in Orphanage? Parents Believe So

CHICAGO (AP) — The mystery that surrounded the hospital kidnapping two years ago of 37-hour-old Paul Joseph Franczak has been reopened with the adoption of a child by the parents.

Tht infant was taken from Mrs. Chester Franczak's arms in Michael Reese Hospital April 27, 1964, by a woman posing as a nurse. She said she was taking the infant for an examination, walked out of the hospital with the baby and was never seen again.

The Fronczak's believe they have their son. He is a sandy-haired two-year-old abandoned July 2 in Newark, N.J., and has been in an orphanage.

Neighbors said Mr. and Mrs. Fronczak have told them they are convinced the child is theirs. They said the lad has been playing in the Fronczak yard since last week.

"His name is Paul Joseph, the same as before," Fronczak, 35, a machinist, told reporters.

The FBI, which has been investigating the case, declined comment.

The Fronczak lawyer, William O'Toole, issued a statement which said in part:

"The Federal Bureau of Investigation has conducted extensive investigations and the medical profession exhaustive studies concerning this child sinee July, 1965.

"While it has not been absolutely established that Mr. and Mrs. Fronczak are the parents, neither has this fact been excluded."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jackie Thompson, age 11, of Ooakland, Calif., for her question:

How Is Coal Turned Into Diamonds?

The basic material in coal is made in the earth's crust, but carbon — and diamonds are made entirely of carbon atoms. Both coal and diamonds are made in the earth's crust, but very different recipes are used to make them. Coal is not a step in the diamond-making process and our coal deposits are not destined to become vast layers of glittering diamonds.

Only 13 elements in the earth's crust are more plentiful than carbon. Its atoms are used by all plants and animals to make hydrocarbon molecules and they are present in all organic chemicals. Its atomic number is six, which means that its atom has six protons in the nucleus and an orbiting system of six electrons. Carbon is one of life's vital elements and united with other elements if forms thousands of chemical compounds.

Charcoal, made mostly from carbon, was known in prehistoric times. Sooty smoke is made mostly of carbon particles and so is the lead in a pencil. This so-called lead is a soft, waxy mineral called graphite and most graphite is the final stage in the earth's coal-making recipe. And a sparkling diamond also is a form of pure carbon.

The making of coal is a slow process taking millions of years. It begins when masses of vegetation become buried in the ground. The bacteria that normally cause plants to decay are not present and the material fails to rot. Instead it becomes crushed under heat and pressure. Liquids and light gases are squeezed out of the material and the carbons are left behind. Gradually the coal deposit becomes more and more carbonized until it becomes oily, black graphite.

Atoms Tightly Packed

The carbon atoms in graphite are loosely packed together in careless arrangements. The carbon atoms in a diamond are arranged in a tightly packed crystal pattern. The crystal is very dense and diamond weighs three and one-half times more than an equal volume of water; graphite only two and one-half times.

In nature such crystals may form from atoms deposited by water or under terrific heat and pressure. Diamonds are formed in the fury of volcanic activity and we find them in the vents and tubes of ancient volcanoes. They form from carbon atoms present in the seething lava and the recipe may be finished in a short period of fierce heat and pressure.

The shape of a crystal depends upon the shape of its individual particles. The diamond follows an eight-sided octahedron pattern shaped like two pyramids sharing the same base. Diamonds in the rough may be octahedrons, cubes or round masses coated with dark crust. But when broken apart the planes and angles tend to split into octahedron patterns. And nature transforms only small traces of her carbon atoms into hard, dense crystals of diamonds.

Andy send a 15-inch World Book Globe to William Nisbet, age 8, of South Portland, Maine, for his question:

What are pieces of eight?

Doubloons and pieces of eight are coins that make us think of bloodthirsty pirates on the Spanish Main. The doubloon was a golden Spanish coin and the piece of eight was silver. Pieces of eight were minted in Mexico City around 1732, more than 200 years ago. And they may have been the ancestors of our dollars today.

Some people call a quarter two-bits or a two-bit piece. There are four quarters in a dollar and if each quarter had two pieces there would be eight pieces in a dollar. There were eight sections in the old Spanish piece of eight and some people claim that the sections could be broken apart to make change.

WORKERS 'CHEESED OFF' . . . . . . BY LACK OF PROGRESS

'We Can't Hold Men on the Job'

More than 5,000 loggers and mill workers on Vancouver Island were on strike by noon today.

All operations within the district covered by Duncan Local 1-80 were strikebound. This involved 3,500 persons.

At Port Alberni, 950 workers at MacMillan Bloedel's Somas mill went out this morning, along with 275 loggers at Sproat Lake.

"In my opinion the entire coastal area will be closed down tight by Tuesday midnight," said Duncan president Weldon Jubenville.

"Anyone who is out on strike now has the full support of local union officers.

"It is quite obvious the membership is bitterly disappointed it was not instructed to walk out at midnight June 14" (when the contract expired).

The strike started at MacMillan Bloedel in Chemainus when the night shift didn't go to work. As the strike spread this morning, crummies brought loggers back from the woods.

In Victoria, Local 1-118 president Murray Drew and strikers at Victoria Plywood accused the company of employing non-union truck drivers and having foremen do employees' work.

Said Mr. Drew: "The plant committee went to the company, had a meeting and were as much as told to go to hell.

"The plant committee gave them until 12 o'clock (midnight) to say what they were going to do. No answer was forthcoming."

Strikers outsided the Hallowell Road mill gave the same reasons, but added they are "cheesed off" that negotiations made no progress.

A company spokesman re-

$50 Million Package Sought!

This is what 50 cents an hour means for the person working a full 40-hour week.

Present hourly wages run from $2.36 for laborers to $4.12½ for some head sawers. Fallers and buckers are paid on a piecework basis.

The average hourly wage, according to the industry, is $2.82.

In weekly sums, this means $94.40 for laborers, $165 for some head sawyers — and an average of $112.80.

The wage demand alone, if met in full, would cost the industry an extra $25 million.

An industry spokesman has said the fringe benefits demanded would cost another 50 cents an hour, for a total of $50 million.

Woods' Walk-Off Spreads

Members Defy Order To Remain at Jobs

By ROGER STONEBANKS

British Columbia's biggest industry began grinding to a halt today.

By noon, half the 26,000 union members along the coast and on Vancouver Island were on strike.

The legal strike is in defiance of union leaders and the union's 10-man negotiating committee.

They wanted workers to remain on the job until Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, the industrial inquiry commissioner in the contract dispute, brings down his report next week and members vote on it in a secret ballot.

But individual members decided to go ahead on their own to back pre-strike demands and union leaders were unable to persuade them to stay at work.

CITY MILL CLOSED

Among those on strike at noon were more than 5,000 on Vancouver Island. Only mill struck locally was Victoria Plywood, where 200 men called it quits Thursday night.

"It's just mushrooming," said Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local, who reported half his members on strike.

A meeting of the union's negotiating committee was callled for this afternoon "to take a look at this situation," said regional president Jack Moore.

Mr. Thompson blamed the companies for the walkouts, although he agreed with Mr. Moore the men should wait.

'LITTLE DONE'

During three months of negotiations the employers had "done little more than sit on their well-proportioned posteriors, and have refused to resolve any of the major issues in dispute."

The individual members were "sick and tired of employer procrastination and delay."

Company negotiator John Billins declined comment.

There was no comment from Mr. Justice Nemetz.

Earlier, however, he said he expects to start writing his report early next week. His recommendations are not binding on either side.

Last Tuesday, he was assured by union leaders there would be no strike until his report was completed and submitted to members for their decision.

FRASER WALKOUT

But on Wednesday, 160 loggers in the Fraser Valley went on strike and by Thursday night about 3,500 men were out.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said he has persuaded Mr. Justice Nemetz to continue seeking a solution to the woodworkers contract dispute despite the walkout.

"As labor minister, I'm pinning my hopes on him to effect a settlement or else bring in a report with his recommendations," Mr. Peterson told The Times in an interview from Vancouver.

He revealed that the judge had spoken with him this morning about the surprise walkout and "he's most disturbed by it which is in contravention of the agreement reached between the union negotiators and myself."

EXTEND DEADLINE

Mr. Peterson said at Judge Nemetz's request, he was prepared to extend the deadline for the commission report "as long as necessary."

Meanwhile, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Willis-

INJURED RUSSIAN SEAMAN is carried ashore from Soviet fishing vessel Indigirka. Fellow crewmen, among them several women, lined ship's rails for their first close-up glimpse of a Canadian port. Several English-speaking crewmen asked to see Canadian coins. In exchange they offered Russian money and cigarettes. One woman tried to board the ambulance with the injured man but was called back by immigration officials who boarded the ship to speak to the captain.

Injured Russ Seaman Lands For Treatment

By TERRY IZZARD

An ambulance team was standing by at Ogden Point when the refrigeration ship tied up at 9 a.m.

At press time he was in fair condition.

Dr. William Edwards, who was put aboard the vessel by a B.C. Pilotage boat which went to meet it, said Frolov appeared to have a brain abcess.

FELL ON SHIP

Officials, who spoke to the ship's captain, said the seaman suffered a fall on April 25.

No reason was given for the delay in getting him to shore.

In the two hours before the ship sailed to join the fishing fleet off the coast of Washington, crewmen chatted in halting English with newsmen on shore.

They exchanged coins and cigarettes as their comrade was loaded into the ambulance.

CALLED BACK

But an immigration official called her back to the ship.

It is believed Frolov will be flown back to the Soviet Union or picked up by one of the fleet when he recovers.

Five other Russians from the vast Soviet fleet have been landed at North American ports for treatement in recent months — two of them in the past two days.

Financial Paper Blasts Big B.C. Power Project

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

A major Wall Street financial paper which is bitterly opposed to public power has lambasted B.C. Hydro's Peace River project, Premier Bennett and New York financiers willing to sell a $50-million bond issue for B.C. Hydro.

Barron's, the publication, made its attack in this week's edition warning its readers against buying the bonds before they go on the market.

It said the agreement by five top New York financial houses to sell the bonds "points up one of the street's most unfortunate failings . . . its willingness to do business with men one can't trust."

Premier Bennett's office today said he was too busy with appointments to see reporters seeking his reaction to the attack.

●

The paper's editorial went on to recall its angry opposition to Premier Bennett's "illegal" takeover of the B.C. Electric Company.

Then it swung into direct criticism of B.C. Hydro.

"From a bad beginning, the authority is moving steadily towards a dubious end. In view of the restraints on investment, domestic and foreign, now being urged on private enterprise in the U.S. and Canada alike, this is a curious moment to pursue a huge and costly project.

"Even in the best of times, as the prospectus neglects to point out, the Peace River development which the new bonds will help to finance would strike most observers as highly speculative.

"Power, as Lord Acton once said, corrupts. He should have lived to see public power.

"It's quite a sight. On the U.S. side of the border stand such monuments to lack of principle as the obsolete nuclear power station at Hanford, Wash., as well as this illegally financed generating plant of the Colorado-Ute Electric Association.

"Now a project is rising north of the border, which—for size, cost and potential waste of resources—will dwarf anything on the continent."

The editorial said B.C. Hydro will have to spend $1.36 billion on the Peace and Columbia River projects in the next five years and the proposed bond issue "is only the first round" of borrowing.

It criticized the bond issue prospectus because it did not mention the "confiscation" of B.C. Electric.

"As to the future, the prospectus sheds equally dim light. For example, it nowhere breaks down total scheduled investment be-

PARIS (Reuters) — Air France, the French state airline, was almost paralyzed today by a 48-hour strike by crew members which started at midnight Thursday night.

Two-Year Pact Ends Seaway Strike Threat

OTTAWA (CP)—A seaway strike that would have cut off shipping for half a continent was called off Thursday night when union and management negotiators settled for a wage increase of 20 per cent now and another 10 per cent in 1967.

Total cost will approach $4,000,000.

The agreement, approved at an emergency session of the federal cabinet, will raise the average wage package of the St. Lawrence Seaway's 1,200 operating employees to $3.21 an hour from $2.36 as of next Jan. 1.

Settlement terms were worked out late in the fourth day of mediation talks directed by Senator Norman MacKenzie, appointed to the task only last Thursday by his old university schoolmate, Labor Minister Nicholson.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the settlement in the Commons a half-hour before the Canadian section of the seaway was scheduled to begin shutdown procedures. A strike had been set for noon today.

Sen. MacKenzie later reported that the 20-per-cent wage boost will apply retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year, when the old contract expired.

EXPECTS APPROVAL

W. J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), told the press conference he is confident his union members would accept the package.

Dr. Pierre Camu, president of the deficit-ridden St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, declined comment on all aspects of the settlement; including cost figures.

However, a reliable informant said later the wage package would cost an additional $1,360,000 this year and $2,500,000 extra in 1967. Last year's total wage bill on the seaway was about $5,000,000.

Mr. Smith told reporters the total value of the wage and benefits clauses in the new contract would be a minimum of 75 cents an hour and an average of 85 cents an hour for each worker.

Mr. Nicholson, who took over the federal labor portfolio in January, stressed that the seaway settlement should not be looked upon as a pattern.

"This was a special situation," he told a reporter, obviously with an eye to the crucial negotiations coming up later this summer in the railway industry.

MOVED MEETINGS

MacKenzie had ironed out all of the fringe issues in the seaway dispute earlier in the week during talks with both sides that began Monday in Cornwall and switched here Wednesday morning in order to be close to the source of power — the seaway's political headquarters.

Both sides met with Senator MacKenzie Thursday morning. But in the afternoon he kept the two parties in separate rooms and carried on a back-and-forth negotiating procedure.

The union had originally demanded a 35-per cent increase in one year, later amending this to two years.

DOCKERS REJECT FINES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ten union officials took three-month sentences today in lieu of fines after being convicted of contempt of court.

The men, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CLC) were convicted by Mr. Justice David Verchere and sentenced to three months or fines totalling $4,100.

They were convicted of disobeying a court order designed to stop the union from giving instructions to its members not to work on the Victoria Day holiday.

B.C. Supreme Court order instructed the officials to countermand any instructions they had given for a work stoppage on Victoria Day, to post notices to that effect on bulletin boards and to inform the Maritime Employers' Association that the order had been complied with.

NO WORD

The association, which had sought the order, informed Mr. Justice Verchere earlier this week that it had received no word from the union.

Mr. Justice Verehere fined Roy C. Smith, B.C. area president of the union, $500. The other nine were fined $400.

All 10 had surrendered themselves to the sheriff Wednesday after an order for their arrest had been made the day before because they had not appeared in court to face the charges.

SIGNALS CROSSED IN N.Y. HARBOR

Ship Crash Death Toll 20

NEW YORK (AP)—Intense heat and continuing danger of new fires thwarted efforts today to search for more victims in the twisted metal left by the flaming collision of two ships, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

More than 18 hours after the collision in the Kill van Kull Channel in lower New York Harbor firemen still were pouring foam onto the smoking, smoldering hulk of the British tanker Alva Cape, trying to cool her down and ensure that her remaining volatile naphtha cargo does not catch fire again.

The coast guard placed the toll of known dead at 20 among 101 crew members on the tankers and two escorting tugs which also caught fire after the collision Thursday. Twelve were listed as missing with 69 survivors, 40 in hospital.

The British tanker was carrying the naphtha cargo. The other vessel, the American tanker Texaco Massachusetts, had no cargo.

BLAMES SIGNALS MIXUP

A harbor pilot, Donald Baker, 45, of Massapequa Park, N.Y., who was aboard the Alva Cape, said the disaster apparently was caused by a mixup in signals.

Baker said the Texaco Massachusetts, which was pulling out of a tank farm, signalled the Alva Cape, which was coming into the channel, that the two ships would cross paths.

Baker said he acknowledged the signal and proceeded, possibly believing that the Texaco Massachusetts intended to hold back until his ship had passed.

Baker said when he saw that a collision was probable, he ordered full speed astern and, "we gave him (the American ship) a whistle, but by the time they answered, we were right on top of them."

Witnesses said one of the tugs exploded, igniting naphtha leaking from the 546-foot British tanker Alva Cape after its collision with the Texaco Massachusetts, an American tanker heading for the Gulf of Mexico after discharging its cargo in New York.

Alfonso Colon, 56, chief pumpman of the Texaco Massachusetts, told of one unidentified man who "took off his own life belt and gave it to somebody else—then he kept swimming from one man to another and helped them to the buoy."

"Then naphtha started to pour out of the Cape," Colon said. "Nothing serious would have happened but one of our tugs was straining so hard to avoid the accident that it blew up."

The coast guard said the tug, the Esso Vermont, apparently exploded when the naphtha—a petroleum distillate — washed over its engines. Eight of the Esso Vermont's nine-man crew were reported missing. One was rescued.

The cause of the collision remained a subject for coast guard isvestigation, which began immediately.

No Dilution Says PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons today the government has no intention of diluting the four conditions it laid down for provinces to qualify for federal payments for its proposed medical care insurance program.

BRITISH SEAMEN VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters)—The representatives of Britain's striking merchant seamen voted unanimously tonight to continue the strike that started 33 days ago. The decision was announced after a meeting of the seamen's union executive committee here.

But the resolution added that the seamen are willing to resume negotiations with the shipowners.

What Is
INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY?

Well, let's start with what represents Investment INEFFICIENCY: If you invested $2,000 at 7½%, repayable at $50 per month, such monthly repayment ceases to earn interest as do subsequent payments. This money in fact remains idle until funds accumulate to a suitable reinvestment sum.

We might overcome this by investing our $2,000 at 7½%, payable interest only quarterly, with principal payable in full, say, in three years. This is fine, if we wish to spend the interest for cost of living, as the entire principal "keeps busy."

But if you have no need to support your present cost of living with the earnings, MAXIMUM INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY can be effected by compounding your earnings. A 7½% investment compounded quarterly for 5 years provides a 45% growth ($1,000 returns $1,450.) To get this efficiency on really sound security buy Victoria Mortgage 7½% 5-year debentures with interest paid or compounded quarterly. We will be pleased to mail you full information through our prospectus. Phone Douglas Hawkes at EV 4-7128.

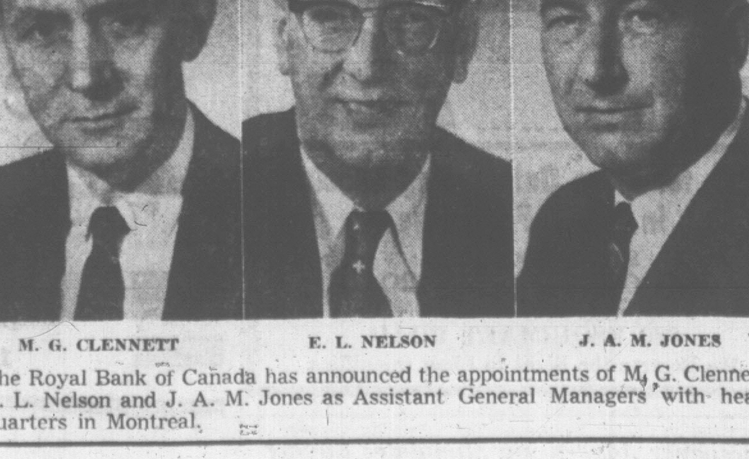
Royal Bank Appointments



M. G. CLENNETT — E. L. NELSON — J. A. M. JONES

The Royal Bank of Canada has announced the appointments of M. G. Clennett, E. L. Nelson and J. A. M. Jones as Assistant General Managers with headquarters in Montreal.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1966—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

We are going to plot a piece of fiction, length about 25,000 words, each of which has a potential value of 35 cents in the right market.

I'm not very good at arithmetic, but unless I have booted my multiplication, this works out to a total of $7,000, give or take. That's enough to retire a modest mortgage, buy a very nice car, or finance a trip to parts where mention of the word "centennial" elicites a scowl and a puzzled "Huh?"

The magazine to which we will offer our story is known in the trade as a woman's book. It is brought out for the modern young matron and is frequently read, in a sheepish sort of way, by her husband.

Materials required are several medium soft pencils or a couple of ballpoints, a package of yellow paper and a box of white. If you can think directly into a typewriter, so much the better. Otherwise, write in longhand and have your script typed later.

All that now lacks is a story idea, and some characters to flesh it out. This we will attend to in note form before starting to write.

It will cheer you to learn that we don't have to invent a story situation. All we need do is select one from the stockpile which has accumulated through the ages.

Suppose we dust off the durable old standby labelled, 'Woman who believes herself happily married is confronted by ghost from her past.'

Working from the general to the specific, let's substitute 'man' for ghost, then plan our shadow-play in terms of the cast.

Since fancy names lack conviction, I suggest we call our story-lady Ruth Logan. She is wedded to John, a junior executive for a large corporation who is all the time busy.

We will give Ruth and John two children: Paul, aged 10, who wears spectacles and lives for the day when his dad will take him rock-hunting; and pretty, rebellious Kim, turned 18.

Now, spot this family in a San Francisco area community, and we're away.

The man from Ruth's past? Since the best way to start a story is in the middle, pulling the beginning in later, we can let him dangle while we acquaint ourselves with the Logans. They have a nice place with an apricot tree in the back yard.

Paul yearns for the rock-hunting trip dad has put off six times already. Ruth is bored with her role as corporation wife. John is bucking for branch manager, and daughter Kim is seeing too much of a Berkley spin-out with beard and guitar.

We are now ready to yank in the other man, whom we'll call Elliot Young. Make him a psychiatrist, which is a very in occupation. Unbeknownest to Ruth, her old flame sets up shop in Palo Verde (that may mean "Green Horse," so you'd better invent another town) and Ruth is referred to him by the Logans' wise, kind old family doctor.

Elliot and Ruth discover fire in the embers. Problem: should Ruth, or can she, stomp it out? Here's where we take the beginning of our story off the shelf and tell the customers how that fire got started.

We can spend a fair amount of space sketching the background of the blighted romance, but we mustn't overdo it, nor can we neglect our other characters. These will drift in and out of the main action with their own little problems as we proceed.

John gets clipped out of the top spot in the corporation branch. Paul goes rock-hunting alone and turns up missing. Kim is conned into nibbling an LSD-tinctured sugar cube, not by the bearded troubadour but the other fellow her folks kept pushing at her, and winds up locked in the bogey-haunted cellar of her id.

Father finds son, psychiatrist rescues daughter, wife comes to her senses, and we exit in good order.

First, though—and this is vital to your story—make 'em suffer!

MAD HATTER of the Boy Scouts is A. G. "Lofty" Coning. Here he prepares to put impractical Scout skimmer into orbit. (Bill Halkett Photo.)

Scouts Atten-Shun, Uncover —Now Altogether, Heave!

By GLEN ALLEN

Picture a mass rally of Greater Victoria Scouts at Clover Point.

Drawn up in close order formation they wait the command.

●

Having rid themselves of their hats, the Scouts should "march to Centennial Square to wash our knees in the fountain as a public act of renunciation of short pants."

Mr. Coning says much of the Boy Scout uniform is of Boer War vintage and changes are long overdue. He's been saying so for two weeks in a sustained vocal attack.

"The best of us will often be tempted to worship at the shrine of status quo."

Mr. Coning, a member of the B.C. and Yukon regional council, had earlier urged that "if Scouts want to wear long hair, and call their leaders 'Dad' let them make a good job of it."

Mr. Scrivener replied, "The point I still want to make is that boys make their own choice, patrol by patrol.

"Shorts or longs, round or flat, it's up to a boy what he wants to wear."

To silence an exchange that has so far generated more noise than the Crimean and Boer Wars lumped together the Times today asked a dozen Scouts what they wanted to wear.

Of the 12 asked, 11 opted for short pants over longs.

Not all were anxious to make a choice. Some would like to have both shorts and longs, round hat and beret.

●

The regulations are for most purposes, mute on the subject.

Said Peter Grove, 13, of a Juan de Fuca district scout troop, "Shorts are better because it's warm here. Longs get very hot and besides some people get tight longs and some get baggy ones.

Richard Hardisty, 14, said that if he had his choice he would choose blue jeans.

"But since I can't I'll take shorts," he said, adding that he wanted to keep his round hat for dress occasions and his beret for hiking and camping.

A young man who said he had been scouting in Ottawa, Ian Sinclair, 16, of 6th Arbutus, said "longs are expensive and nobody ever seems to get any that look the same.

"They're better in the cold though."

A mother, whose scout son was not available for questioning perhaps had the best formula of all.

"Longs for winter and shorts for summer," she said.

He also said he preferred his Stetson in wet weather, even though it got "all crumpled up."

"They make a boy look sissy," he said, "but I like the beret.

'Hydro Power Here to Stay'

By JOHN MIKA

Atomic power will never displace hydro power but the two techniques some day may become equal partners in sharing the load factors of major electrical grids.

That's the conviction of Trade and Commerce Minister Ralph Loffmark after a trip to California including a study of power development schemes there.

"Atomic power is not as close as some people think and it means that our projects (Peace and Columbia River schemes) will not be undercut by atomic power," he said in an interview today.

NATURE, NOT COSTS

He said the reason is the nature of atomic power rather than a question of costs, although even the predicted decline in atomic power costs has not come as quickly as expected.

"Atomic power can't be stored," he said. "Once you activate the nuclear reaction, it keeps going steadily and you either use the generated power immediately or lose it.

"As a result, atomic power would be best used to carry the basic, constant load, but the problem there is they have not yet solved the possibilities of interruptibility inherent in atomic power.

"The only place you can store power, turning it on only when you want it, is in water behind a dam or in a battery.

ALWAYS NEEDED

"So hydro power always will be needed to take care of the heavy peak load demands for power."

Mr. Loffmark said when atomic can be made uninterruptible, it probably will become the standard method of servicing the basic loads in electrical grids while hydro power would be used to handle peak load demands.

He points to California's current hydro development program as proof. He said they are building two high-cost, low-yield dams that are only one quarter as economic as British Columbia's Peace River project.

"One of these is quite close to Los Angeles, where you would think that atomic power would be a natural. Yet, they are building the world's highest concrete dam — 634 feet — on the relatively small Yuba River at Buller Bar," Mr. Loffmark said.

The Buller Bar dam will cost $160 million to develop only 200,000 kilowatts of energy, compared with 2,270,000 kilowatts to be produced by a $400 million dam on the Peace River.

The cost per unit of electrical energy in the California project will be $800 — compared with $180 in the Peace River project.

"This is typical of the cost differentials for power between B.C. and most of the western U.S. and the differential is even higher in the east. It also parallels the experience of the Japanese who have high-cost, low-yield dams too," said Mr. Loffmark.

"The significance for us is the great length to which the Americans will go to capture what little hydro power they have available and that they are still prepared to do this notwithstanding the prospect of atomic power."

He believes this is conclusive proof that hydro power will never be replaced by atom-powered generators.

Put Up or Shut Up Says City Alderman

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

An irate city alderman this morning told Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to put up or shut up.

Ald. Michael Griffin, incensed by what he termed an insulting letter from the minister regarding council's approach to tenders, said "he should name names, cases and dates."

Mr. Campbell in a letter to all municipalities in B.C. said his department is receiving many complaints that low bids on municipal contracts are often being rejected.

"All councils should exert every effort that will assist in arresting this upward trend," the letter stated. "Aside from the ethics involved there is a question of added cost to the municipal taxpayer."

"We are quite aware of our responsibilities to the taxpayer," snapped Ald. Griffin in reply. "We don't need a minister of the crown lecturing us like a schoolteacher. We are well aware of the fact that in dealing with city funds we are in fact dealing with trust funds."

"Many of us on council are reasonably successful businessmen," he added. "Each and every day we have to make mature judgments in the awarding of contracts and other related matters.

"It is impudent to an insulting degree for someone at the minister's level to suggest that we are failing to exercise that same discretion in a responsible way when it comes to municipal contracts."

Ald. Griffin admitted that there may be occasions when council did not accept a low bid.

"But the only time we would award a contract to other than the lowest bidder would be after mature consideration and reasons," he said.

'NAME NAMES'

Ald. Griffin said if Mr. Campbell had any specific cases in mind where the city has deliberately accepted a high bid and wasted taxpayers' money he should say so.

"If he has any cases to which he can point a finger I suggest he name the cases, dates and the amounts involved. In fact it is his duty to do so.

"This letter is most irresponsible," he said. "Insulting and irresponsible in the extreme."

Initially Baffled? —ICUR2

Representatives of the AMS, CUPM, MAA, NCTM and SIAM met this morning at the University of Victoria.

And strangely enough, the members of organizations making up this alphabet-soup are more interested in numerals than in letters.

They are mathematicians—to be precise, members of the American Mathematical Society, Committee for the Undergraduate Program in Mathematics, Mathematical Association of America, National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, and Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics.

* * *

Titles of the papers to be delivered at their meet sound as mystifying to laymen as the initials of their names.

They include such matters as "An example of a Julia line which is not a Milloux line: proximate homotopy: singular perturbations of a nonlinear system of ordinary differential equations: a natural transfinite hierarchy of hyperdegrees."

They will engage in something of more general interest this evening. At 8:30 in the Students' Union Building the assembled mathematicians will have a beer party.

Ask The Times

Q. Who were the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame? W.R.

A. The Four Horsemen, according to the World Book Encyclopedia, made up the Notre Dame University football team backfield from 1922-24. They were Harry Stuhldreher, quarterback; Jim Crowley, left halfback; Don Miller, right halfback; Elmer Layden, fullback.

Q. Did Premier Bennett serve in either the First or Second World War? F.W.

A. Premier Bennett enlisted in the RCAF in March, 1918, as a pilot trainee, according to Who's Who in Canada.

Painters Have Full Weekend

Many would-be window painters in Esquimalt won't have time for their art until Saturday, so the contest has been extended.

The windows in Esquimalt Shopping Plaza have been made available as a feature of Buccaneer Day. Entries are still coming in. Judging takes place Monday.

Smoke Screened In Closed Room

City council met behind closed doors this morning to discuss the city's smoke bylaw and the tangled intermunicipal library agreement.

Following the 2½-hour meeting Mayor A. W. Toone refused to comment on either topic.

"I can't comment on the smoke bylaw because we have a case before the courts and I have nothing for public release on the library agreement until I have talked to the reeves" of Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and Central Saanich.

Under the smoke bylaw Capital Iron and Metal has been charged with violating the law. The case will be in magistrate's court sometime next week.

On the library agreement it is known that outlying municipalities are unhappy with what has been termed "Victoria's parochial attitude."

The new agreement would see a more equitable sharing of costs. It was in its final draft phase when Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow insisted the city's membership on the library board be raised to five, while Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Central Saanich held one membership each.

Ald. Edgelow said unless this was done the other municipalities would be "running our library."

The statement brought angry rebuttals from other municipalities.

In refusing to comment on the present stage of negotiations Mayor Toone said it was earlier press stories which had caused the present trouble. He did not deny their accuracy.

SCHOOL REPORT SECRET

Greater Victoria School Board will get the word tonight from the experts.

University of British Columbia Professors Lorne Downey and Walter Hartrick will unveil their report on school administration at a closed board meeting.

The board commissioned the pair to make a critical study of the school system in a move designed to streamline and update the administration.

The two men have worked on their report for the past six months. Its recommendations are expected to outline guidelines for future development of the system.

Exactly what they are will be made known to the board tonight but the public will have to wait a while to hear their views.

School Board Chairman John Porteous said the report will not be made public either tonight or Saturday when the board will hold another meeting to study the report.

$350 Penalty For Driver

Robert Scarabelli, 516 Dallas, was fined $350 when he pleaded guilty in central court today to impaired driving.

He was charged after his car was seen to skid out of control and speed on Quadra June 9.

4TH OFFENCE MEANS JAIL FOR DRIVER

Raymond Healy, 3214 Newmarket, was sentenced to a month in jail today when he was convicted for the fourth time of driving without a licence.

The accused was involved in a minor road accident on Esquimalt Road June 2 and told police then his licence was in a jacket at home. He later admitted to not having one.

Healy was convicted on a similar charge last month and had two convictions for the same offence last year.

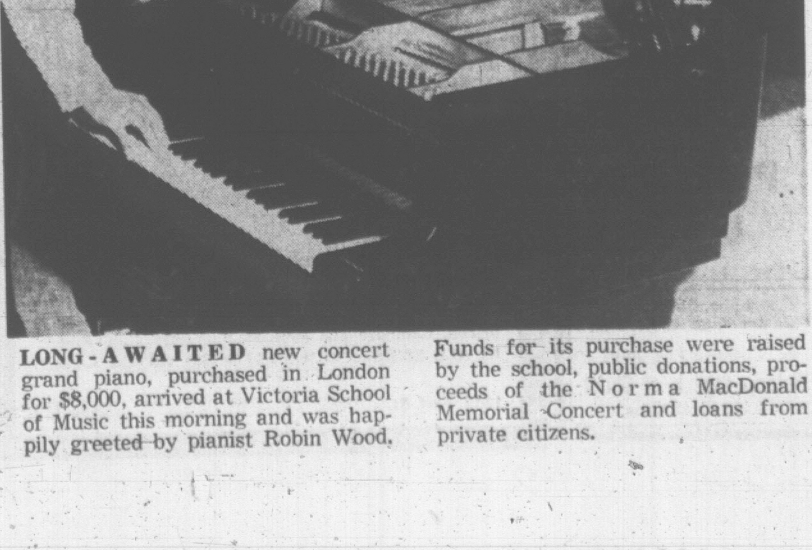
He was also fined $40 when convicted of careless driving.

Group Formed To Keep Peace

Saanich council and Greater Victoria school board will establish a liaison committee to ensure harmony in their future relations.

The decision was made after a meeting Thursday between Reeve Hugh Curtis and board vice-chairman Peter Bunn.

The two public bodies tangled over the planning of parking facilities at a new school in Saanich. Purpose of the liaison committee is to avoid similar disputes in future.



LONG-AWAITED new concert grand piano, purchased in London for $8,000, arrived at Victoria School of Music this morning and was happily greeted by pianist Robin Wood. Funds for its purchase were raised by the school, public donations, proceeds of the Norma MacDonald Memorial Concert and loans from private citizens.

MPs Dispute Drug Claims

Manufacturers' Statesments Draw Caustic Comments at Prices Probe

Three doctor-MPs made critical comments about the basis for the industry's claim that drug prices are fair and reasonable and about the industry's picture of itself.

Dr. Gaston Isabelle (L—Gatineau) figured the price inquiry is a waste of time and said the whole industry ought to be investigated, especially "the racketeers.

He said he thinks about half the companies are in that category. They should get out of business because they are giving the legitimate business a bad name.

Dr. Isabelles comment was made at the end of an 80-minute session during which a battery of officers and experts of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association of Canada was questioned by committee members.

MADE DETAILED CASE

In an inch-thick brief the association produced an array of statistics and arguments to support its opposition to loss or modification of patent protection and its support for abolition of the 11-per-cent federal sales tax and other measures.

The association, representing 57 companies which make 85 per cent of pharmaceuticals sold in Canada, proposed establishment of an independent source of information on drug products and prices and a tribunal to referee applications by manufacturers for compulsory licences to produce patented drugs.

A basic part of the associations argument that prices are fair and reasonable was the contention that a Canadian works fewer hours than people in most other countries to pay for drugs.

The brief produced a statistical formula which showed Canada second only to the United States on an index of retail prices covering Sweden, Britain, West Germany, France, Holland and Italy.

Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) took issue with the associations support of a price system based on cost to the druggist plus fee for service as a means to lower drug costs.

LSD MAY AID ALCOHOLICS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dr. Abram Hoffer, a Canadian psychiatrist, says the controversial fantasy-producing drug LSD may aid in the successful cure of alcoholics.

"Properly used LSD therapy can convert a large number of alcoholics into sober members of society," said Dr. Hoffer, director of psychiatric research for the Saskatchewan department of public health.

Bankruptcy Court Next Step in Crackdown

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave a speedy detailed approval Thursday to legislation to tighten up the bankruptcy law with the knowledge it's a forerunner to more sweeping changes.

Justice Minister Cardin, who piloted the legislation through the House, said the government is studying the possibility of a national court with exclusive jurisdiction over bankruptcies.

He suggested the federal Exchequer Court may be transformed to handle the job. He was "very strongly" in favor of consideration of such a move.

The Exchequer Court's prime function now is to handle civil cases involving income tax, patents and copyrights.

The consideration of a national court is a companion to a comprehensive study under way for some time of the whole Bankruptcy Act, last revised in 1949. The government has assigned three lawyers as a committee to draft a wholesale revision.

Mr. Cardin said their job should be completed before the end of the year.

Despite occasional sallies from Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon), the opposition fraud and crime watchdog, MPs were in no mood to quibble too much with the amending legislation.

What Is
INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY?

Well, let's start with what represents Investment INEFFICIENCY: If you invested $2,000 at 7½%, repayable at $50 per month, such monthly repayment ceases to earn interest as do subsequent payments. This money in fact remains idle until funds accumulate to a suitable reinvestment sum.

We might overcome this by investing our $2,000 at 7½%, payable interest only quarterly, with principal payable in full, say, in three years. This is fine, if we wish to spend the interest for cost of living, as the entire principal "keeps busy."

But if you have no need to support your present cost of living with the earnings, MAXIMUM INVESTMENT EFFICIENCY can be effected by compounding your earnings. A 7½% investment compounded quarterly for 5 years provides a 45% growth ($1,000 returns $1,450.) To get this efficiency on really sound security buy Victoria Mortgage 7½% 5-year debentures with interest paid or compounded quarterly. We will be pleased to mail you full information through our prospectus. Phone Douglas Hawkes at EV 4-7128.

Dock Union Leaders Jailed

INJURED RUSSIAN SEAMAN is carried ashore from Soviet fishing vessel Indigirka. Fellow crewmen, among them several women, lined ship's rails for their first close-up glimpse of a Canadian port. Several English-speaking crewmen asked to see Canadian coins. In exchange they offered Russian money and cigarettes. One woman tried to board the ambulance with the injured man but was called back by immigration officials who boarded the ship to speak to the captain.

Injured Russ Seaman Lands For Treatment

By TERRY IZZARD

An ambulance team was standing by at Ogden Point when the refrigeration ship tied up at 9 a.m.

At press time he was in fair condition.

Dr. William Edwards, who was put aboard the vessel by a B.C. Pilotage boat which went to meet it, said Frolov appeared to have a brain abcess.

FELL ON SHIP

Officials, who spoke to the ship's captain, said the seaman suffered a fall on April 25.

No reason was given for the delay in getting him to shore.

In the two hours before the ship sailed to join the fishing fleet off the coast of Washington, crewmen chatted in halting English with newsmen on shore.

They exchanged coins and cigarettes as their comrade was loaded into the ambulance.

CALLED BACK

But an immigration official called her back to the ship.

It is believed Frolov will be flown back to the Soviet Union or picked up by one of the fleet when he recovers.

Five other Russians from the vast Soviet fleet have been landed at North American ports for treatement in recent months — two of them in the past two days.

Extremism In Wage War 'Dangerous'

There is need for more discipline in both labor and management, a minister of the Alberta Social Credit government said here.

Contempt Fines Rejected by 10

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ten union officials took three-month sentences today in lieu of fines after being convicted of contempt of court.

The men, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (CLC) were convicted by Mr. Justice David Verchere and sentenced to three months or fines totalling $4,100.

They were convicted of disobeying a court order designed to stop the union from giving instructions to its members not to work on the Victoria Day holiday.

B.C. Supreme Court order instructed the officials to countermand any instructions they had given for a work stoppage on Victoria Day, to post notices to that effect on bulletin boards and to inform the Maritime Employers' Association that the order had been complied with.

The association, which had sought the order, informed Mr. Justice Verchere earlier this week that it had received no word from the union.

Mr. Justice Verehere fined Roy C. Smith, B.C. area president of the union, $500. The other nine were fined $400.

All 10 had surrendered themselves to the sheriff Wednesday after an order for their arrest had been made the day before because they had not appeared in court to face the charges.

They were released on their own recognizance until today.

The nine men fined $400—all presidents of locals—were L. D. Copan, Vancouver local 501; Donald Garcia, New Westminster, local 502; Lanford Mackie, Port Alberni, local 503; George William Ball, Victoria, local 504; Edward Pilford, Prince Rupert, Local 505; William Laurillard, Vancouver, local 506; William Foster, Vancouver, local 507; David Mason, Chemainus, local 508; and Vincent Shannon, Vancouver, local 510.

Bev Dunphy, Canadian area representative in Vancouver, said "it's easy to see what the employers are trying to do. Most of these men are members of our negotiating committee and our contract expires July 31."

"Our argument is not with the courts, although we are disappointed," Mr. Dunphy said.

He said the union has told its membership not to contemplate wildcat strike action. However, there were rumors that longshoremen here were taking a word-of-mouth vote on a wildcat walkout.

BRITISH SEAMEN VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE

LONDON (Reuters)—The representatives of Britain's striking merchant seamen voted unanimously tonight to continue the strike that started 33 days ago. The decision was announced after a meeting of the seamen's union executive committee here.

But the resolution added that the seamen are willing to resume negotiations with the shipowners.

ORDER DEFIED

B.C. Forest Strike Spreads

By ROGER STONEBANKS

British Columbia's biggest industry began grinding to a halt today.

By noon, half the 26,000 union members along the coast and on Vancouver Island were on strike.

The legal strike is in defiance of union leaders and the union's 10-man negotiating committee.

They wanted workers to remain on the job until Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz, the industrial inquiry commissioner in the contract dispute, brings down his report next week and members vote on it in a secret ballot.

But individual members decided to go ahead on their own to back pre-strike demands and union leaders were unable to persuade them to stay at work.

CITY MILL CLOSED

Among those on strike at noon were more than 5,000 on Vancouver Island. Only mill struck locally was Victoria Plywood, where 200 men called it quits Thursday night.

"It's just mushrooming," said Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local, who reported half his members on strike.

A meeting of the union's negotiating committee was called for this afternoon "to take a look at this situation," said regional president Jack Moore.

Mr. Thompson blamed the companies for the walkouts, although he agreed with Mr. Moore the men should wait.

'LITTLE DONE'

During three months of negotiations the employers had "done little more than sit on their well-proportioned posteriors, and have refused to resolve any of the major issues in dispute."

The individual members were "sick and tired of employer procrastination and delay."

There was no comment from Mr. Justice Nemetz.

Earlier, however, he said he expects to start writing his report early next week. His recommendations are not binding on either side.

Last Tuesday, he was assured by union leaders there would be no strike until his report was completed and submitted to members for their decision.

FRASER WALKOUT

But on Wednesday, 160 loggers in the Fraser Valley went on strike and by Thursday night about 3,500 men were out.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said he has persuaded Mr. Justice Nemetz to continue seeking a solution to the woodworkers contract dispute despite the walkout.

"As labor minister, I'm pinning my hopes on him to effect a settlement or else bring in a report with his recommendations," Mr. Peterson told The Times in an interview from Vancouver.

He revealed that the judge had spoken with him this morning about the surprise walkout and "he's most disturbed by it which is in contravention of the agreement reached between the union negotiators and myself."

Mr. Peterson said at Judge Nemetz's request, he was prepared to extend the deadline for the commission report "as long as necessary."

Meanwhile, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Willis-

$50 Million Package Sought!

This is what 50 cents an hour means for the person working a full 40-hour week.

Present hourly wages run from $2.36 for laborers to $4.12½ for some head sawyers. Fallers and buckers are paid on a piecework basis.

The average hourly wage, according to the industry, is $2.82.

In weekly sums, this means $94.40 for laborers, $165 for some head sawyers — and an average of $112.80.

The wage demand alone, if met in full, would cost the industry an extra $25 million.

An industry spokesman has said the fringe benefits demanded would cost another 50 cents an hour, for a total of $50 million.

Financial Paper Blasts Big B.C. Power Project

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

A major Wall Street financial paper which is bitterly opposed to public power has lambasted B.C. Hydro's Peace River project, Premier Bennett and New York financiers willing to sell a $50 million bond issue for B.C. Hydro.

Barron's, the publication, made its attack in this week's edition warning its readers against buying the bonds before they go on the market.

It said the agreement by five top New York financial houses to sell the bonds "points up one of the street's most unfortunate failings . . . its willingness to do business with men one can't trust."

Premier Bennett's office today said he was too busy with appointments to see reporters seeking his reaction to the attack.

●

The paper's editorial went on to recall its angry opposition to Premier Bennett's "illegal" takeover of the B.C. Electric Company.

Then it swung into direct criticism of B.C. Hydro.

"From a bad beginning, the authority is moving steadily towards a dubious end. In view of the restraints on investment, domestic and foreign, now being urged on private enterprise in the U.S. and Canada alike, this is a curious moment to pursue a huge and costly project.

"Even in the best of times, as the prospectus neglects to point out, the Peace River development which the new bonds will help to finance would strike most observers as highly speculative.

"Power, as Lord Acton once said, corrupts. He should have lived to see public power.

"It's quite a sight. On the U.S. side of the border stand such monuments to lack of principle as the obsolete nuclear power station at Hanford, Wash., as well as the illegally financed generating plant of the Colorado-Ute Electric Association.

"Now a project is rising north of the border, which—for size, cost and potential waste of resources—will dwarf anything on the continent."

The editorial said B.C. Hydro will have to spend $1.36 billion on the Peace and Columbia River projects in the next five years and the proposed bond issue "is only the first round" of borrowing.

It criticized the bond issue prospectus because it did not mention the "confiscation" of B.C. Electric.

"As to the future, the prospectus sheds equally dim light. For example, it nowhere breaks down total scheduled investment be-

SIGNALS CROSSED IN N.Y. HARBOR

Ship Crash Death Toll 20

NEW YORK (AP)—Intense heat and continuing danger of new fires thwarted efforts today to search for more victims in the twisted metal left by the flaming collision of two ships, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

More than 18 hours after the collision in the Kill van Kull Channel in lower New York Harbor firemen still were pouring foam onto the smoking, smoldering hulk of the British tanker Alva Cape, trying to cool her down and ensure that her remaining volatile naphtha cargo does not catch fire again.

The coast guard placed the toll of known dead at 20 among 101 crew members on the tankers and two escorting tugs which also caught fire after the collision Thursday. Twelve were listed as missing with 69 survivors, 40 in hospital.

The British tanker was carrying the naphtha cargo. The other vessel, the American tanker Texaco Massachusetts, had no cargo.

BLAMES SIGNALS MIXUP

A harbor pilot, Donald Baker, 45, of Massapequa Park, N.Y., who was aboard the Alva Cape, said the disaster apparently was caused by a mixup in signals.

Baker said the Texaco Massachusetts, which was pulling out of a tank farm, signalled the Alva Cape, which was coming into the channel, that the two ships would cross paths.

Baker said he acknowledged the signal and proceeded, possibly believing that the Texaco Massachusetts intended to hold back until his ship had passed.

Baker said when he saw that a collision was probable, he ordered full speed astern and, "we gave him (the American ship) a whistle, but by the time they answered, we were right on top of them."

Witnesses said one of the tugs exploded, igniting naphtha leaking from the 546-foot British tanker Alva Cape after its collision with the Texaco Massachusetts, an American tanker heading for the Gulf of Mexico after discharging its cargo in New York.

Alfonso Colon, 56, chief pumpman of the Texaco Massachusetts, told of one unidentified man who "took off his own life belt and gave it to somebody else—then he kept swimming from one man to another and helped them to the buoy."

Colon said his ship struck the Alva Cape and "cut through it like a knife."

"Then naphtha started to pour out of the Cape," Colon said. "Nothing serious would have happened but one of our tugs was straining so hard to avoid the accident that it blew up."

The coast guard said the tug, the Esso Vermont, apparently exploded when the naphtha—a petroleum distillate — washed over its engines. Eight of the Esso Vermont's nine-man crew were reported missing. One was rescued.

The cause of the collision remained a subject for coast guard investigation, which began immediately.

No Dilution Says PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons today the government has no intention of diluting the four conditions it laid down for provinces to qualify for federal payments for its proposed medical care insurance program.

'Cheesed Off' Workers Out

More than 5,000 loggers and mill workers on Vancouver Island were on strike by noon today.

All operations within the district covered by Duncan Local 1-80 were strikebound. This involved 3,500 persons.

At Port Alberni, 950 workers at MacMillan Bloedel's Somas mill went out this morning, along with 275 loggers at Sproat Lake.

"In my opinion the entire coastal area will be closed down tight by Tuesday midnight," said Duncan president Weldon Jubenville.

"Anyone who is out on strike now has the full support of local union officers.

"It is quite obvious the membership is bitterly disappointed it was not instructed to walk out at midnight June 14" (when the contract expired).

The strike started at MacMillan Bloedel in Chemainus when the night shift didn't go to work. As the strike spread this morning, crummies brought loggers back from the woods.

In Victoria, Local 1-118 president Murray Drew and strikers at Victoria Plywood accused the company of employing non-union truck drivers and having foremen do employees' work.

Said Mr. Drew: "The plant committee went to the company, had a meeting and were as much as told to go to hell.

"The plant committee gave them until 12 o'clock (midnight) to say what they were going to do. No answer was forthcoming."

Strikers outside the Hallowell Road mill gave the same reasons, but added they are "cheesed off" that negotiations made no progress.

tween the three Columbia River dams, two of which will generate neither electricity nor profits, and the Peace River project itself.

"It makes no effort to suggest where the power ultimately will go or at what price or cost."

The editorial claimed that the Pacific Northwest will not be short of power in the 1970s yet B.C. Hydro expects to sell surplus Peace River power in the U.S.

It slammed the power authority as unbusinesslike because it runs transit bus systems at a loss and has reduced residential electricity rates "at the expense of profits."

Barron's acknowledged this would be popular "in some circles" and noted that the Northwest Public Power Association last spring gave B.C. Hydro an award for the greatest advancement in the shortest time.

"On both sides of the border, what former U.S. president Dwight Eisenhower labelled creeping socialism, lately has been making a great leap forward," Barron's concluded.

"Wall Street should be the last to underwrite its advance."

Gemini Pilots Named

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—U.S. Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. will fly Gemini 12, the United States' final two-man space mission late this year.

Governments Called Into Court

Both the federal and provincial governments have been lasooed into court by a handful of resort owners angered by the log drive down the Stellako River, 80 miles west of Prince George.

Federal fisheries officials and the provincial attorney-general's department will be represented in Vancouver Courthouse Monday morning in response to an application for a writ of mandamus by the resort owners.

If issued, the writ would compel the federal fisheries department to take steps to prohibit and stop the log drive ordered by Forests Minister Ray Williston this week despite a warning from a federal official that it would not be allowed.

The federal position is that the logs will damage salmon-spawning beds. Mr. Williston says the river is so high the logs will pass over the gravel beds without touching them and, in any event, it's a river under provincial jurisdiction.

The resort owners claim that the log drive deters sports fishermen from coming to the area and could wipe out the salmon fishery.

Two-Year Pact Ends Seaway Strike Threat

OTTAWA (CP)—A seaway strike that would have cut off shipping for half a continent was called off Thursday night when union and management negotiators settled for a wage increase of 20 per cent now and another 10 per cent in 1967.

Total cost will approach $4,000,000.

The agreement, approved at an emergency session of the federal cabinet, will raise the average wage package of the St. Lawrence Seaway's 1,200 operating employees to $3.21 an hour from $2.36 as of next Jan. 1.

Settlement terms were worked out late in the fourth day of mediation talks directed by Senator Norman MacKenzie, appointed to the task only last Thursday by his old university schoolmate, Labor Minister Nicholson.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the settlement in the Commons a half-hour before the Canadian section of the seaway was scheduled to begin shut-down procedures. A strike had been set for noon today.

Sen. MacKenzie later reported that the 20-per-cent wage boost will apply retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year, when the old contract expired.

EXPECTS APPROVAL

W. J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), told the press conference he is confident his union members would accept the package.

However, a reliable informant said later the wage package would cost an additional $1,360,000 this year and $2,500,000 extra in 1967. Last year's total wage bill on the seaway was about $5,000,000.

Mr. Smith told reporters the total value of the wage and benefits clauses in the new contract would be a minimum of 75 cents an hour and an average of 85 cents an hour for each worker.

Mr. Nicholson, who took over the federal labor portfolio in January, stressed that the seaway settlement should not be looked upon as a pattern.

"This was a special situation," he told a reporter, obviously with an eye to the crucial negotiations coming up later this summer in the railway industry.

MacKenxie had ironed out all of the fringe issues in the seaway dispute earlier in the week during talks with both sides that began Monday in Cornwall and switched here Wednesday morning in order to be close to the source of power — the seaway's political headquarters.

Both sides met with Senator MacKenzie Thursday morning. But in the afternoon he kept the two parties in separate rooms and carried on a back-and-forth negotiating procedure.

The union had originally demanded a 35-per cent increase in one year, later amending this to two years.

Seaway negotiators started at a three-per-cent raise in each year of a three-year contract. They later accepted a conciliation board report suggesting 7 per cent immediately and another seven per cent next year.

The main aim of the seaway worker was to get close to parity with workers on the American side of the waterway. A U.S. official said the average wage for operating employees on the few seaway links situated in the U.S. is $3.57 an hour.

'Decisive' Rail Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — The CNR's biggest union has voted 95 per cent in favor of strike action to back up current contract demands.

W. J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers Thursday announced the result of the secret mail ballot. A total of 22,200 ballots went to the union's 127 locals. Of these 20,323 were returned to the Ottawa headquarters by the deadline—18,512 for a strike, 969 against and 842 blank.

"This is by far the most decisive strike-vote ever registered by our railway members," Mr. Smith said.
